15 LOSE LIVES, FOUR INJURED IN AIR CRASHES

Seven Drown When Indian Liner Is Forced Down Off Genoa.

SEVERE GALE BEATS PLANE UNDER WAVES

Pilot's Fright Is Blamed for Deaths of Two at Field in Ohio.

MOTHER SEES SON'S CHUTE FAIL TO OPEN

Craft on South American Route Is Missing in Hop to Pensacola.

Croydon, England, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The Imperial Airways tonight announced the loss of the Indian airliner, City of Rome, with seven persons, in a gale off Genoa yesterday. It was the second disaster in little more than four months on its lines and in the first seven lives also were lost.

A Miss Bromford was the only woman on board. The other passengers were two men named Robinson and Ritchie and Customs Officer Turney, who was returning to his post at the airdrome here from a holiday in Naples. Capt. Birt, the pilot, was a very experienced officer. The others in the crew were Engineer Pembroke and Operator Stone.

Complete details were still lacking tonight, but according to the statement of the Airways the airplane, after leaving Naples yesterday, met terrific weather at Leghorn. The gale exceeded 70 miles an hour. The radio operator sent out an S O S call that notified land points the machine was compelled to descend on the sea 10 miles south of Spezia.

Big Seas Snap Tow Ropes.

The Italian steamer Famiglia, from Genoa, responding to the distress call, was said to have found the airliner riding the heavy seas well. It got three tow ropes aboard and towed the plane for an hour. The seas were so terrific that the hawsers snapped and the steamer put into Spezia for further assistance.

Since then destroyers and aircraft searched the spot, but found nothing, and it was reluctantly concluded that all had drowned.

The City of Rome was a big three-motored machine capable of carrying fifteen passengers. It was similar to the machine used by Sir Alan Cobham in his 20,000-mile trip around Africa. The air mail service between Karachi, India, and London, was started only last month.

Pilot's Body Found.

Genoa, Italy, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A British trimotored airplane in the India service apparently carried seven persons to their deaths in the Ligurian Sea yesterday. The torpedo boat Sella, searching the section of the waters where the plane had been forced down, found the body of the pilot but no trace of the plane or the other persons.

Late yesterday the British plane, in an S O S message, said it was being forced to descend to the sea near Spezia owing to bad weather conditions. The sea at the time was rough. An Italian seaplane put out yesterday to the rescue but was unable to find the other craft.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Two men were killed and a third seriously injured in an airplane accident near Woods Field, Monroe County, tonight.

The dead were Lester Patton and Clarence Ricor, of Woods Field. The injured man was Wallace Mott, owner of the plane, also of Woods Field.

Pilot's Fright Blamed.

According to Mott, whose leg was nearly torn off, Ricer was piloting the plane and became frightened, causing the machine to nose dive from an altitude of 500 feet. It landed in the center of the highway between Malaga and Jerusalem.

Before the crash, Patton attempted to take the controls from Ricer, but was too late to avert the accident.

The plane was wrecked. Mott was thrown into a ditch at the side of the road. He was taken to the Ohio Valley Hospital at Wheeling.

Sheriff Ford Moore of Belmont County left for the scene of the accident to investigate. Patton and Ricer were said to have been student fliers. Patton was married and had two children. Ricer was single.

Two Killed at Air Circus.

Stockton, Calif., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Two brothers were killed and the pilot of the plane in which they were flying was seriously injured when their ship crashed fro ma height of 150 feet during an air circus at the Stockton Municipal Airport today. Thousands of spectators saw the plane go into a tail spin and crash at the edge of the airport.

SENATOR BURTON'S LIFE DESPAIRED OF

All Hope for Statesman's Recovery Is Abandoned, His Secretary Says.

ILL FOR SEVEN WEEKS

(Associated Press.)

Friends of Senator Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, gave up hope of his recovery last night, following a sinking spell late yesterday afternoon from which he only partially rallied.

The senator lapsed into unconsciousness and remained at the point of death for about two hours, when he began to rally. He was still unconscious in the early hours of the evening.

His secretary, Robert Norton, said: "It is only a matter of hours or days until he passes away. There is no hope left for his recovery."

He added that specialists had been called into consultation with the senator's personal physician.

For the last seven weeks the 77-year-old senator has been confined to his home, except for brief walks. Thursday night he suffered a relapse, and his friends have been concerned since that time over his condition. Besides a complete physical breakdown, he has suffered from an attack of grip.

Roosevelt Bars Costly Welcome

Porto Rico Governor Urges Children Not to Spend for Greeting Flags.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Gov. Theodore Roosevelt has disapproved of the purchase of American flags by school children to wave in greeting him on his trips over the island.

Learning that the children or their teachers were buying the flags with their own money, which the children sometimes needed for their school lunches, the governor issued a statement suggesting a less expensive method of honoring him. He said he appreciated the sentiment but would be just as happy if the children showed their feeling by singing or in some other way that involved no expense to them.

Flag displays have been limited since Gov Roosevelt's arrival, owing to exhaustion of the local supply.

Chinese Importer Dies Of Two Bullet Wounds

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Wong Sung, manager of a Chinese importing company, died of two bullet wounds in the stomach today after six shots had been fired at him in his establishment in Chinatown.

Two of his cousins told police that two men had entered the importing establishment, pointed pistols and ordered them to put up their hands. They said Wong Sung was shot when he attempted to dash to the door. Detectives expressed the opinion that Wong Sung's financial affairs were responsible for the shooting. The slain man was a member of the Wong tong, powerful Chinese organization that maintains neutrality during conflicts between the On Leong and Hip Sing tongs.

PEACE TOWER DEDICATED BY UNIVEHSALISTS

Symbol of World Justice Is Also Tribute to Owen D. Young.

HUNDREDS ASSEMBLE IN CHURCH CEREMONY

Representative Fish Is Principal Speaker of Occasion.

ADVISES PROHIBITION OF MUNITIONS EXPORT

U. S. Should Cease Being Potential Slaughter-House, He Says.

Erected as a symbol of international justice and world peace, and as a tribute to Owen D. Young, a tower, forming the central feature of the Church, at Sixteenth and S streets new Universalist National Memorial northwest, was dedicated yesterday afternoon by several hundred Universalists from all parts of the United States.

The dedication ceremony came as an aftermath of the convention of Universalists which ended yesterday. Each member of the large audience in front of the church yesterday afternoon took part in the ceremony by repeating, in unison, the words of the dedication.

The principal address was made by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, representing the foreign relations committee of the House. Representative Fish, called upon the people of the Universalist Church to help in bringing about the passage of a law prohibiting the export of arms and munitions from this country to belligerent nations without the consent of Congress.

Hits English Tories.

"The United States," he said, "should cease from being the potential slaughter house of the world. If we must have wars in the future, let them be in defense of the United States and not in defense of war profiteers or the greed of munition manufacturers."

Speaking of former efforts to obtain an agreement between nations to absolve war, Representative Fish declared that the failure of the limitation of naval armament at Geneva was due to the Tory cabinet, then in power in London. He declared that this power did not desire parity with the United States, but clung to the old Nelsonian slogan that Britain rules the waves.

The speaker observed that now the tide is turning, that peace is in the hands of Providence with such men as Hoover and MacDonald. He predicted that the approaching conference in London would bring in view the high road leading to the goal of peace between all nations.

Young Given High Praise.

Representative Fish devoted a large part of his speech to praise of Young, pointing out that although Young is a private American citizen, he has accomplished more than any general or statesman in the world "to end the war after the war" in the mad scramble over German reparations.

A further tribute to Young was made by the Rev. Frank D. Adams, reelected president of the Universalist General Convention. "Owen D. Young," said Dr. Adams, "is acknowledged by a grateful world as the embodiment of international justice and world peace."

An impressive portion of the ceremony was the reading of a telegram from Young which, in length and expression, was accepted as a fitting

ARLINGTON BEAUTY HURT IN ACCIDENT

20 Stitches Taken in Jaw of Miss Ethel Donaldson in Hospital Here.

OTHERS ARE INJURED

Miss Ethel Donaldson, 21-year-old beauty of Cherrydale, Va., who was proclaimed last year as "Miss Arlington County," suffered painful injuries to her jaw, necessitating 20 stitches, early yesterday morning, when the automobile in which she was riding veered off the Marlboro pike near Marlboro and overturned.

Miss Helen Bowman, 20 years old, of 222 South Carolina avenue southeast, in the same accident sustained contusions to the shoulder, and Charles Fuchs, 21 years old, of 2002 Rhode Island avenue northeast, a Southern Railway employe, received numerous lacerations on the face and head. The three were taken to Emergency Hospital and treated by Dr. J. E. Lewis and Dr. J. J. Krick, who reported that none was seriously injured.

Lloyd Kidwell, of Ballston, Va., driver of the machine, was only slightly cut and bruised and refused medical aid. Arlington County police established identification of Kidwell's car through a Virginia tag found on the machine, which they declared had been found bloodstained and unoccupied about 5 o'clock yesterday morning by Ninth Precinct police at Tennessee avenue near F street northeast, where it had been towed and temporarily abandoned.

Miss Donaldson is secretary to Amos C. Crouse, Arlington County attorney.

When the former "Miss Arlington County" walked into the hospital she was minus one of her slippers which was lost when the machine turned over, but Detective Sergt. Harry Cole proved himself a "Cinderella man" by finding the beauty's missing footwear in the tonneau of Kidwell's machine.

Two men and a young boy were slightly injured yesterday when their automobile was in collision with another machine and turned over at Sixteenth and B streets southeast.

The injured are Charles Shaw, 8 years old, and Francis Shaw, 27 years old, both of 1643 Massachusetts avenue southeast, and Cornelius Franklin, 23 years old, of 259 Seventh street southeast, all colored. They were treated at Casualty Hospital.

The accident occurred when an automobile operated by John R. Burch, of Crozet, Va., struck the machine of James Mitchel, colored, 23 years old, of 1536 B street southeast, in which the men and boy were riding. When Mitchell's car overturned it collided with the parked machine of J. E. Stubfield, of 203 Sixteenth street southeast, and both machines were damaged.

Humbert Is Greeted On Return to Italy

Pisa, Italy, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Crown Prince Humbert, returning from his betrothal ceremonies at Brussels, was greeted at the station here today by his parents and his sisters, the Princesses Giovanna and Maria.

The royal family proceeded a little later to their summer home at San Rossore.

Young Gas Thief Slain at Garage

Buzzer Rigged Up as Trap for Siphon Artist Warns Owner.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Halice Valoris Lindley, 20, of Kokomo, Ind., a sophomore at Ball State Teachers College here, was shot and fatally wounded early today by Jesse L. Senter, as he was leaving Senter's garage, where he was believed to have been stealing gasoline. He died two hours later.

Senter had attached a wire to his garage so that a buzzer would sound in his bedroom when the door was opened for the purpose of catching a thief who had been siphoning gasoline from his automobile several nights each week.

When the buzzer sounded this morning Senter rushed out to find Lindley near the door with a gasoline can in one hand. Lindley ran when Senter commanded him to surrender, and Senter fired at him four times. One bullet took effect. Police indicated no charges will be placed against Senter.

33,000 VICTORY IS DEMOCRATIC VIRGINIA HOPE

Party Workers' Reports Claim All Districts in State.

UNEASINESS HOLDS, DESPITE ESTIMATE

Private File Figures Are Held Minimum Margin of Safety.

COALITION STRONG IN NORTH SECTION

Three Counties Adjoining Capital Mark Center of Insurrection.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 27.—The fact that the Democratic leaders of this State's gubernatorial campaign have gone over, checked and rechecked their precinct figures and arrived at an irreducible majority of 33,000 November 5, and yet feel uneasy is fairly indicative of the state of mind that last year's upset has given them.

From the Richmond headquarters here the word first went out to the precinct and county leaders for an impartial, unbiased report. And when it came in with gratifying conclusions, the leaders again called for a survey, an accurate one.

"Mark off every doubtful vote," the order went out in effect, "and let us know how you stand."

Yet this second report, giving assurance that the Democrats will carry every district in the State, has not served to allay the uneasiness in the Democratic camp. It is all because the burnt child fears the fire and indicative, too, of the importance which the Democrats attach to the State's silent vote.

Insist Upon Their Grief.

It is a striking commentary on things when an outsider after studying the reports of both sides tells the Democratic headquarters that its cause seems to be safe, he meets with the response, "Oh, we don't know. There are so many possibilities." It is like trying to console a widow. The Deemocrats insist upon their grief.

Here are the strictly private reports to the Democratic headquarters made in response to demands that every possible doubtful vote be marked entirely off.

First district—Democrats by 2,250 majority; second, 5,600; third, 5,000; fourth, 7,500; fifth, 1,000; sixth, 1,500; seventh, 3,000; eighth, 2,000; ninth, 2,500; tenth, 3,500; a total, of 33,850.

Now, of course, these figures will at once be challenged by the coalition leaders and with reason, and it may readily be that the precinct workers who were responsible for them will be found to have been poor political prognosticators, indeed.

One Important Point.

This should be borne in mind, though. Precinct workers are not inclined to report their precincts safe until they have pumped the money coffers dry. They are more inclined to report that their precincts are in a terrible state, but that with more money they can bring things around to a satisfactory point.

If the Cannonites do not carry the first and eighth districts, however, they will be genuinely surprised. If they haven't a majority in these two districts then they will, indeed, ask themselves the question of whatever made them think they could win in the first place. They are pointing their victory on the carrying of these two districts and the holding down of the vote in the second.

Of the two districts which they are confident of carrying, one, the Eighth, is that which embraces the counties adjacent to Washington. These counties, three of them in particular, Stafford, Arlington and Fairfax, are considered the head center of the insurrection. Fairfax is the domicile of Frank T. Lyon, the State manager for the Cannonites, who, if he never gets any farther in politics, made Collier's Weekly this week; that is to say, his name was carried in a story in that national magazine, and any struggling newspaperman will tell you how hard it is to break into Collier's.

Hold of Ku Klux Klan.

It is in these three counties that the State has felt its greatest infiltration of new residents. A great number of them, if not the majority, do not care anything about Richmond having been the capital of the Confederacy or Monticello the fountain spring of Democracy.

The preponderance of them are employed by the Government in Washington in one capacity or another. They are Republicans, independents and whatnot. It is among these newcomers that the Ku Klux Klan has taken a decided hold. Its State membership is placed at 60,000, and fully two-thirds of this membership is in the counties adjacent to Wash-

Prosecutor Is Charged With Inefficiency by Dr. J. N. Pierce.

SENATOR TO PRESS POLICE HEAD WAR

Both Doyle and Allen Get Copies of Charges Laid Against Them.

NATION INTERESTED IN SITUATION HERE

Sackett Inquiry Resumes This Week; Will Study Ouster Demand.

With the trials of Capt. Robert E. Doyle and Policeman Robert J. Allen, suspended members of the Metropolitan Police, and the Senate subcommittee's investigation occupying the stage in Washington's turbulent police row, the district attorney's office was brought directly under fire yesterday by Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, who delivered a broadside against that office during his morning service.

Declaring lawlessness in Washington is increasing, Dr. Pierce charged that the inefficiency of the district attorney's office was the principal contributing factor.

"I do not question the honesty of the United States attorney's office," he said, "but I affirm that conditions could be vastly improved if the United States attorney's office was aroused and efficient."

Delay in Trials Likely.

Although the police trial board convened in regular session Wednesday, delay of at least a week and possibly longer will develop in the trial of Doyle.

Policeman Allen has expressed himself as being pessimistic about his trial before the regular police trial board and has announced he and his attorneys will petition the District Commissioners for trial before a board composed of men outside the Police Department.

While Capt. Doyle has steadfastly insisted that he will be ready to stand trial when called Wednesday, it is believed that his attorney, Chapman W. Fowler, will ask at least a week's postponement at Wednesday's meeting of the board to better prepare the captain's defense.

Senator Cole Blease announced last night that he will ask that a meeting of the Sackett subcommittee be held today to consider his second resolution calling for the suspension of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police; Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward Kelly, unless Capt. Doyle and Policeman Allen are restored to the pay roll. If he fails in this endeavor, Senator Blease said he would poll the entire District committee on his resolution and press for action upon it in the Senate.

Threatening Letters Sent.

In connection with the report that he had received several death threat letters, the senator stated the letters had been merely warning missives, obviously sent to him by "innocuous zanies," and he had thrown them into the waste paper basket without consideration.

When the trial of Capt. Doyle opens, it is understood, his counsel plans to bring scores of character witnesses before the board, to indicate the high esteem in which he is held by friends and associates.

There is a possibility that Doyle's attorney may enter some objection to one or more of the three members of the Trial Board. As two members of that board are captains, it has been suggested that Doyle might not wish to be tried before men of the same rank in the Police Department.

Both Doyle and Allen have received the official charges of which they

DR. BROWN ADMITS SHORT BALLOT VOTE

Last Year Favored Measure He Now Attacks, Says Coalitionist.

REVERSAL IS EXPLAINED

Lexington, Va., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Dr. Willia mMoseley Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee for Governor of Virginia, voted last year for the "short ballot" amendments to the State constitution, which he has vigorously attacked in the current campaign, he said in a statement issued here tonight.

The coalition candidate said he had accepted the national and State leadership of the Democratic party "without seriously questioning either", and had voted for the amendments as a "regular Democrat."

"But after Al Smith became the Democratic nominee for President, and after the Democratic machine leaders of Virginia began their program of abuse, condemnation and villification against those who had an honest difference of opinion with them, I could not but entertain grave suspicions as to the sincerity of the leaders in whom I had previously confided," Dr. Brown said.

"Upon further consideration I found that the 'short ballot' amendments were but another example of Tammany methods and designed for the sole and deliberate purpose of perptuating machine rule in this State. Every one knows these amendments take out of the hands of the people the control of three of the most important of their State offices, together with thousands of others who are directly or indirectly under them. Such provisions would undoubtedly prove to be a dangerous weapon in the hands of the machine leaders. Under the circumstances, therefore, I can not and will not further countenance the reten-

GASTONIA PROTEST STIRS LONDON RIOT

Crowd Marches to American Embassy and Clashes With Policemen.

FIERCE FIGHT RESULTS

London, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Communists and mounted police tonight had a sharp conflict in the vicinity of Victoria station. Several hundred persons attempted to march from Trafalgar Square to the American Embassy as a demonstration against alleged persecution of militant workers in general and the Gastonia, N. C., textile workers especially. They had prepared a resolution of protest to be left for the ambassador.

The police finally broke up the demonstration and arrested many of the participants.

The demonstrators carried red flags and banners with such inscriptions as "MacDonald Gorges in Washington," and "Textile Workers Starved and Murdered in Gastonia." These were flourished by the rioters, who tried to smash windows of passing vehicles. Many innocent onlookers became involved in the fierce fighting.

The trouble began when leaders of the demonstration were informed they could not be received at the United States Embassy. They then attempted to rush the police cordon. The scrimmage lasted for about half an hour.

Poincare, Clemenceau Continue to Improve

Paris, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Improvement was reported today in the condition of both Raymond Poincare and Georges Clemenceau, former French premiers.

Clemenceau, it was advised, had a good night's rest and seemed better than at any time in the last two weeks. A bulletin issued by Poincare's physicians, Drs. Marion, Gosset and Boidin, read: "Physicians caring for M. Poincare consider he is entering convalescence. He passed a good night. All goes well."

will be tried. The chief complaint against them is "disrespect" to superior officers, while in Allen's case an additional specification charges insubordination in an open declaration against obeying rules of the department.

Charging that law is neither properly observed nor properly enforced in Washington, Dr. Pierce in the prelude to his sermon, declared that failure to enforce law does more to impair the reputation, the good order, the discipline and the morale of the police force than all the Doyles and Allens in America could ever be accused of doing.

"Are Allen and Doyle correct in stating that the stock broker Moffatt had twice been indicted, but never tried, although years had elapsed since indictment? Could this be so if the United States attorney's office were aroused and efficient?" he asked.

Blame for lawlessness also was placed upon the courts by Dr. Pierce, who declared clogged dockets and cumbersome legal procedure greatly hampered law enforcement.

Inquiry Resumes This Week.

The Sackett subcommittee will resume this week, its members conscious of the fact that Washington's turbulent police row has now become a problem of national interest.

Proof that the situation has ceased to be one of purely local interest is seen in the dispatches of the Associated Press and other national press associations.

The blast of Senator Blease, of South Carolina, on Saturday, when he described Washington as a "hades of crime" and called on President Hoover to oust the commissioners, was printed in newspapers from border to border and coast to coast.

But the press of the National really began to take interest in the local situation long before this. The flow of crime news started from here when Policeman Allen, now suspended, persuaded the grand jury that Virginia McPherson was murdered and was not a suicide.

Nation Watches Developments.

Almost every development since then has been of interest out of town—the murder of Marpory O'Donnell, the death of Amelia Dreyfus on the Potomac, an dthe various sensational speeches and police quarrels that have punctuated the six-week period.

Just when the senatorial subcommittee will meet has not been decided, but Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, the chairman, announced Saturday that it would be early this week.

The meeting of the subcommittee Saturday was hardly a meeting at all. With the Senate itself convened to hear an important report by Chairman Caraway, of the lobby investigating committee, two members of the Sackett subcommittee—Jones, of Washington, and Vandenberg, of Michigan—felt that their presence in the chamber was essential, and therefore could not take part in the District inquiry.

When it meets this week, the subcommittee will take up what it planned to take up Saturday—the four official communications that are awaiting it and the so-called ouster resolution of Senator Blease.

Subject of Communications.

The communications are from Attorney General Mitchell, who has been asked to lend the subcommittee special agents; United States Attorney Rover, who has been asked to explain the delay in prosecuting the culprit in the last Chinese tong murder; Police Judge Schuldt, who has been asked for a report on guntoting, and Police Chief Pratt, who was asked to explain why Policeman Allen was suspended while investigating the McPherson case.

"Religion is vitally interested in the observance and enforcement of the law of the land. That law is neither properly observed nor properly enforced here in Washington. Failure to enforce the law does more to impair the reputation, the good order, the discipline and morale of the police force than all the Doyles and Allens in America could ever be accused of doing. Failure to enforce the law breeds new criminals and encourages the old.

"Are Allen and Doyle correct in stating that the stock broker Moffatt had twice before been indicted but never tried although years had elapsed since indictment? Could this be so if the United States attorney's office is aroused and efficient?

Delay in Trial Cited.

"Before Thanksgiving last year three Negroes in Washington were arrested for murder. They were not indicted until January 29 nor tried the crime. Why this delay if the United States attorney's office had been aroused and efficient?

"Over a year ago, just down Tenth street, within two blocks of this church, a Negro janitor was killed in a gambling joint. The murder mystery remains unsolved; but the gambler named under oath as proprietor was never investigated in connection with the murder nor was he prosecuted for running one more gambling establishment. Why not, if the United States attorney's office had been aroused and efficient?

Four blocks away from this church another man apparently has been doing a large liquor business for years, corrupting our youth and ruining the happiness of scores of homes. Last January he was legally raided and over 100 quarts of whisky and gin and several gallons of alcohol were seized. Three months later, on May 3, another legal raid netted over 500 quarts of whisky and gin and 43 gallons of alcohol. Why wait half a year before indicting such a man, with his trial in the dim distant future, if the U. S. attorney's office is aroused and efficient?

Law Violations Increasing.

"These and other instances in streets and alleys hard by this church illustrate a general and demoralizing condition. I do not question the honesty of the U. S. attorney's office. I affirm that this condition could be vastly improved if the U. S. Attorney's office were aroused and efficient.

"Law violations in Washington are increasing. There is more systematized bootlegging, illicit manufacture and sale of hard liquor than there was five years ago, and these evils never go alone. Our police arrest men for drunkenness only as a last resort, yet already in 1929 we have passed the unbelievable number of 12,000 such arrests since last January 1—a record number. Boys and girls as well as men and women are selling agents.

"The magnitude of the task and the difficulty of enforcing the law but go to prove how greatly the law is needed. At such a time are the courts helping by timely justice? On the contrary with clogged dockets they are hindering by untimely delay.

Calls for Working Courts.

"Is it true that courts do not open until 10 a. m., take an hour off for luncheon, and close at 3 or sometimes 4 o'clock? Is it true that courts function on an average five days a week? Is it true that judges take a three months' vacation? Is it true that courts often adjourn because judges are indisposed or enjoy poor health? If in the Army all officers must be fit for duty or be retired, should not the same apply to judges?

"If in business and professional life we meet volume of work by proportionate application, should not our courts do the same? And if the Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, or the Department of Justice, has authority to assign other judges to relieve the clogged condition of our courts, would not aroused and efficient officials make that request?

"It is a vicious circle of logic and one which harms society when the United States attorney's office blames the delay of justice to court condition and the courts in turn criticize the evidence presented by the police and throw it out on technicality, and then the Police Department feels the hopelessness of initiative under such conditions.

Rothstein Murder Cited.

"In New York City some months ago a gambler named Rothstein was murdered by a party or parties unknown. The police commissioner was notified that he must find the murderer or resign his position. Failing to find the murderer, he was compelled to resign and he died of a broken heart. How differently we proceed in Washington. A young woman meets a violent death September 13. The heads of our detective bureau announce it to be a suicide. Largely upon their testimony as presented by one of them and without hearing other witnesses, excepting three doctors, a coroner's jury of six men, acting in a manner which the grand jury pronounced to be "merely a matter of form," found the death suicidal. Possibly it was.

"But the grand jury was led to investigate the event, and the grand jury pronounced it murder and indicted a man. The grand jury found that the heads of the Detective Bureau showed ineffectiveness, destroyed evidence, failed to interview important witnesses, while under oath attempted to mislead the grand jury, told other witnesses what they should testify and what forget; and in view of these findings the grand jury requested the superintendent of police and the District Commissioners to suspend these two officers from their duties pending investigation. The answer of these authorities is to transfer these officers with pay and without trial, but to suspend without pay and with trial Officer Allen and Capt. Doyle.

"I have never seen Allen or Doyle, to my knowledge. I hold no brief for them, though I wish them well. But I have a question to ask you.

Sees Need for Suffrage.

"If the District of Columbia was self-governing, if that grand jury held the right of suffrage, if the citizens of this District elected the Commissioners, would this situation arise? We might be in a worse situation, but at least it would be different. Our problems then would be those of a sef-governing people."

REGULAR SESSION TO FINISH TARIFF

Efforts to Speed Senate Action on Measure Fall Short.

NIGHT WORK CONSIDERED

(Associated Press.)

Although all Senate leaders seem disposed to hasten action on the tariff, it is becoming increasingly evident that the Hawley-Smoot measure will be before Congress well into the regular session starting in December.

But five weeks remain in the special session to settle scores of major controversies that lurk in the fourteen rate schedules and the free list that the Senate has not yet reached, almost ten months after the House ways and means committee began hearing the hundreds of witnesses that went before it to urge higher duties for agriculture and industry. Thus far the Senate has finished work on only about half of the first rate schedule.

Hopes of party leaders of Senate passage of the bill by November 20 under present procedure have so obviously been dashed on the rocks that it would not be surprising if Senator Smoot, of Utah, in charge of the measure for the administration Republican group, moved night sessions at an early date.

Opposition to Night Sessions.

For a week the Senate has proceeded on an eight-hour day schedule, but matters have not been speeded up appreciably. While there is opposition among the Democratic-Western Republican coalition to night sessions, it is a fact that few, if any, tariff bills have been enacted without resort to work after dark, and if the pending measure is to be passed by November 20, this appears to be the only means of achieving it.

One of the strangest scenes in tariff history has stood out in the first week's consideration of industrial rates by the Senate—that of regular Republicans, opposing higher duties along with the coalition opposition. Even Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, and Senator Jones, of Washington, assistant Republican leader, have evidenced a disposition to accept lower duties in many instances.

Whether this apparent transformation is due to a realization that rates proposed by the House are too high or to resignation in the face of stronger opposition has not been clear.

Amendments Cut Rates.

At any rate, of the approximately 40 amendments acted upon in debate on the chemicals, oils and paints schedule, the majority of them have provided either for decreases in duties or elimination of increases proposed by the House. President Hoover, who proposed a limited tariff revision, has been represented as being opposed to the extent of the readjustment proposed by the House.

Victorious in its first contest for tariff parity with industry, in which it gained more than 100 per cent increase in the 2½ per cent duty on casein, agriculture will make another stand in the Senate today for an increase to 45 per cent ad valorem in the rates on vegetable, animal and fish oils and fats. The pending bill provides specific duties on these commodities which are calculated to fall short of the ad valorem equivalent of 45 per cent.

Aid for Coalition.

In this effort, the coalition will have not only the support but the leadership of two Republicans not counted in its fold—Senators Jones and Thomas. The former has an amendment to boost the rates on animal and fish oils to the 45 per cent minimum, while Thomas would have the same protection given vegetable oils and fats.

One of the principal controversies is expected to revolve about the duty on cocoanut oil, which the farming interests contend displaces domestic cottonseed oil in the American market. Large quantities of this product enter the United States free of duty from the Philippines, but the Senate already has gone on record against disturbing existing free-trade relations with the islands.

The Peoples Lobby, of which Prof. John Dewey, of Columbia University is president, in a statement yesterday said: "A prompt adjournment of Congress would give our national statesmen an opportunity to acquire higher morality and sanity to consider the practical problems which face the regular session of Congress."

Referring to the lobby investigation, the statement continued: "The investigation of lobbies up to date has emphasized the high moral turpitude of some members of Congress and some Government employes, and the higher mental turpitude of many other members of Congress who didn't know what was going on."

Cafe Robbers Get $283, Shoot Diner

Five Masked Men Hold Up Trio in Restaurant in Chinatown.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Five masked men, each of whom pointed two pistols, entered a Chinatown restaurant today, shot and slightly wounded one of the 25 diners in the place, struck another on the head with a pistol and robbed a third of $283. The robbers then fled in an automobile.

On entering the restaurant the robbers went directly to a table occupied by John Longinoti, of Brooklyn, and Richard Vann and Harry Kruger, of Queens.

The five men demanded Longinoti's money and while they were robbing him of $283 his companions moved. One of the robbers shot Vann and another beat Kruger on the head with the butt of a pistol.

NEW ATTACK IS DUE ON BINGHAM'S WORK

Hiring of Business Society's Aid to Prepare Tariff Still Under Fire.

BORAH MAY QUIZ GRUNDY

(Associated Press.)

Further discussion in the Senate of the "loan" of a salaried representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association to assist Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, in framing the tariff bill were forecast yesterday as the Senate lobby committee prepared to resume its hearings tomorrow.

Members of the investigating committee who severely condemned Senator Bingham for this transaction in a report to the Senate Saturday, appeared surprised at the silence of the Connecticut senator under fire.

There are indications that the use of the manufacturers' representative by Senator Bingham in his work on the finance committee in framing the tariff bill will be used as a vehicle for a general attack on the industrial rate schedules of the measure which is now before the Senate.

Senator Bingham Silent.

Despite well-founded rumors of a renewed attack today, Senator Bingham is apparently determined to stand on his previous explanations to the lobby committee. No defense was offered Saturday by himself nor by his colleagues to the attack by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, chairman of the lobby committee.

The Connecticut senator told the lobby committee that "possibly" he had made a "mistake" in using the paid representative of the manufacturers' association, and "technically" placing him on the Senate pay roll at the time he took him into the secret sessions of the finance committee. However, he said he put the association man, Charles Eyanson, on the Government pay roll in order "to subject him to Senate discipline."

Upon resuming hearings tomorrow the lobby committee will recall Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association and representative of the American Tariff League. No reason has been assigned for the recall of Grundy, but it is understood the committee wants to question him further about his contentions that the Republican platform specified general tariff revision.

Borah May Quiz Grundy.

It is likely that Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, a member of the committee, who was absent on Thursday when Grundy was questioned and who was the chairman of the platform committee at the last Republican convention, will do some of the questioning.

Other officers of the American Tariff League and J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff League, will be examined after the committee hears Grundy again.

It is the intention of the committee to confine its hearings for the present to the tariff lobby. Moreover, it is the intention of the committee leaders, including Chairman Caraway and Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to submit reports to the Senate on its findings as particular phases are concluded.

This will afford opportunity to use the committee hearings in the fight against the tariff bill. Another phase of the inquiry which will be examined is the placing of manganese, a product used in the manufacture of steel, upon the free list. Senator Walsh has asked that C. A. Buck, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, be called when this subject is reached.

273 BANKING CHAINS REVEALED IN SURVEY

Group Movement Is General All Over United States, Association Says.

RESOURCES 13 BILLIONS

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The American Bankers Association disclosed today that 1,850 banks in 39 States with resources of $13,275,000,000 had been swept into various chain groups by the force of the current "seismic revolution" against individualism.

The association issued its first country-wide survey of chains and group banking. Two hundred and seventy-three bank chains have sprung into existence. Details of their organization and the swift progress of the movement from coast to coast suggest the rise of something akin to a modern feudalistic regime in finance.

At the center of each group is a powerful individual, bank or holding company. Small unit banks, by the sale of exchange of shares, ally themselves to these stronger interests for mutual benefit and protection.

Movement Is General.

The survey reveals that the movement has not been confined to one part of the country. Chain banking has made as rapid headway in the West as in the East or Middle West. The banks of Minnesota have adopted the idea in greater numbers than those of any other State. Thirty-four separate chains have been formed in Minnesota. They include 435 banks.

Washington is second with 18 chains and 77 banks. Other States with more than 10 chains each are New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, California, Texas, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, and 9 in Nebraska.

New York's 17 chains include 117 banks and represent aggregate assets of $4,206,790,000. Other States where chain systems represent more than $1,000,000,000 in assets are California, Illinois and Michigan.

Opinions Different.

The Economic Policy Commission, which prepared the report, found no evidence to support the assumption that the development of chain banking was a "reaction against restrictions imposed on the multiple-office banking of the branch banking form by antibranch-banking laws."

The commission states that a sharp difference of opinion exists among various State banking commissioners. Some commissioners who answered the questionnaire favored the encouragement of chain banking under certain conditions. Others cited abuses which, they felt, made the system unworkable.

Shotgun Kills Man And Stepdaughter

Son, 10, Discovers Bodies; Enemies Are Believed Responsible.

Arkansas City, Kans., Oct. 27 (A.P.). Carl Jones, 40-year-old farmer, and his stepdaughter, Elizabeth Walworth, 20, were found shot to death at the Jones farm, 4 miles west of Arkansas City, this morning. Part of the farmer's head had been blown off by a shotgun charge apparently fired at close range.

His body was found about 100 yards from the house. The body of the girl was found in the house by Jones' 10-year-old son, who was not awakened by the shots and did not discover the bodies until 8 o'clock this morning.

The girl had a revolver in her hand but had been killed by a shotgun discharge. Officers believe that enemies called Jones from his home, killed him and then returned and killed his stepdaughter, who, fearing their return had armed herself with the revolver. Jones, a widower, and his son and stepdaughter lived alone in the farm house. Officers believe the shooting resulted from differences in the settlement of an estate in which Jones is said to be the principal heir. No date has been set for the inquiry.

Greek Premier Urges More Military Planes

Athens, Greece, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Premier Venizelos, speaking at the opening of the new airplane hangar at Tatoi today, declared Greece must develop military aviation as protection against possible air attacks.

The premier said a naval war in the Mediterranean is impossible, but there is not the same assurance against attack by airplanes. Against such attack, he added, neither the League of Nations nor antiaircraft guns could protect Greece.

NAVY WILL DISPLAY ITS PROWESS TODAY

Exhibitions Are Planned in Air, on Water and on Land.

TIN BUBBLE TO BE HERE

Patriotic societies and the Navy will aid in the local celebration of Navy Day today. Demonstrations of naval prowess will be held in the air, afloat and on land in marking the day, which has been designated by President Hoover as commemorative of the birthday of President Roosevelt.

The day will give the Capital its first view of the new all-metal airship ZMG-2, known as the "tin bubble," which will fly over the city in maneuvers in which the dirigible Los Angeles and naval planes will participate.

Ten naval officers will execute a simultaneous parachute jump from a trimotor Ford plane, part of the Navy's equipment. Planes from the Naval Air Station and from Quantico, Va., will also take part in the aerial demonstration, which begins at 2:30 at the Naval Air Station.

Smoke Screen to Be Laid Down.

Aerial acrobatics will be executed by Navy planes. In addition to this, the planes will lay down a smoke screen.

An elaborate program has been formulated by naval officers, whose object is to focus the attention of the people upon the intimate relation between the national welfare and the Navy.

Activities at the navy yard will begin at 8:30 with a band concert. Following a guard mount, visitors will be taken through the various shops, where guns are being forged and other naval activities are concentrated.

The light cruisers Memphis and Trenton arrived here from Hampton Roads, Va., and are docked at the Washington Navy Yard. The destroyer Abel P. Upshur is also at the dock, and all will be open for inspection by the public throughout the day. So that the public may obtain a better insight into the naval activities, drills will be held periodically during the day.

Marine Camp to Be Open.

An additional feature at the navy yard will be the Marine camp, constructed by the Marine expeditionary force, which will be open from 9 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. Deep-sea diving exhibitions will be held hourly.

At 12:30 p. m. ceremonies will be held at the east end of the Navy Building, Seventeenth and B streets. The principal speaker will be Walter B. Howe, president of the Navy League. If it rains the ceremony will be held inside the building.

The Naval Observatory will be open to the public throughout the day. In the evening it will be necessary for visitors to have admission cards. These may be obtained from the superintendent of the observatory. They are necessary because of the limited facilities.

ZMC-2 to Cruise Over City.

The ZMC-2 will arrive over the city before noon. It will cruise over the city and will then return to its port at Lakehurst, N. J. The Los Angeles will make a visit of all the cities along the Atlantic seaboard, from Virginia to Massachusetts, during the day.

Secretary Adams will give a ten-minute address over the air from Station WRC, which will be relayed by the National Broadcasting Co. His address will be part of the Navy program to be given from 11 to 12 tonight.

Patriotic organizations have planned various activities.

The Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War will honor Admiral Dewey in services at 10:30 at his tomb in Bethlehem Chapel, Mount St. Alban. Col. M. C. Buckey, U. S. A., will preside. Chaplain George F. Dudley, will conduct the devotional exercises.

John Paul Jones Rites Planned.

Under the auspices of the National Sojourners, Military Order of the World War and American War Mothers, a program will be conducted at noon at the monument to John Paul Jones. Capt. George F. Unmacht will be the principal speaker.

Wreaths will be placed at the monument by Rear Admiral T. J. Cowie, paymaster general, U. S. N., retired, and Capt. Unmacht. Benediction is to be pronounced by Chaplain Arlington A. McCallum, of the Military Order of the World War.

Other programs scheduled for the day are:

United Spanish War Veterans at the mast of the U. S. S. Maine, Arlington Cemetery, at 10:30 a. m.

Knights of Columbus program at the John Barry Monument, Franklin Square, at 11 a. m.

Dames of the Loyal Legion, Dupont Memorial, Dupont Circle, at 10:30 a. m.

Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, Farragut statue, at 10:45 a. m.

Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States at the Peace Monument, Pennsylvania avenue and First street, at 10 a. m.

Firing Squads Execute 26 for Fighting Soviet Aims

Rich Peasants Shot in Various Parts of Russia for Alleged Resistance to Grain Collection by Moscow; Four More Doomed.

Moscow, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Dispatches to the official Tass News Agency today said that 26 Kulaks, or rich peasants, in various parts of Soviet Russia had been shot for opposing the government's campaign. The government has encountered some enormous difficulties in its double purpose of gathing grain from the peasantry and converting the present small peasant land holdings into large collective farms.

In the village of Gari, near Ivanovna-Vosniesensk, where the local cemetery was included in a new collective farm established by the government, two priests and two rich peasants were shot for spreading a rumor that the government would destroy the graves and close the church. These rumors had led the population to take severe measures in reprisal against government inspectors and members of the Communist organization.

In the village of Maly Penky, in the same district, two brothers named Korchangi were shot for opposing the establishment of a collective farm by burning their grain and terrorizing local Communists.

For the murder of a government grain collector at Taskoava, in the Tomsk district, five kulaks were shot. The inspector had reported on their activities. At different points in Novosiebersk Province on the same day fifteen kulaks were similarly executed either for opposing a government project or deliberately burning their grain to prevent the authorities from taking it.

The government prosecuting officials have made no secret of these summary executions, which are only a few of those carried out to date in the determination of the authorities to fulfill their plans without regard to consequences.

The death sentence was also pronounced today on four members of the Preobrajensky Church in the town of Kimri, in Moscow Province, for "counter-revolutionary activities." The priest, Koleroy, was among them and a number of others identified with the same church were sentenced to from four to ten years imprisonment.

It was charged that when government agents attempted to close the church the priest and his assistants rushed to the church tower and rang the bells. Hundreds of villagers assembled and, under the alleged inspiration of the priest, attacked the government representatives and members of local Communist organizations.

INQUEST IN CRASH DEATHS DUE TODAY

Evidence That Railroad's Devices Were Working to Be Introduced.

HOPE IS HELD FOR GIRL

Evidence that the warning safety devices of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. were properly operating at the Chestnut street grade crossing Saturday night when Mrs. Mary E. Johnson and Mrs. Ida M. Hopkins were instantly killed and the latter's daughter, Miss Edith Hopkins, critically injured, as one of the railroad's crack fliers, train No. 14, crashed into their automobile, is expected to be introduced at a coroner's inquest into the deaths this morning at 11:30 o'clock at the District Morgue.

Both Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, District coroner, and Lieut. J. E. Bowers, who conducted the police investigation of the accident, declared yesterday that they personally heard and saw the signals in operation a few minutes after the crash when other trains entered the signal block, and subsequent tests by railroad officials proved that the system was in perfect working order.

Confirmation Impossible Yet.

Although it has been impossible to verify their version through Miss Hopkins, whose condition is too serious to permit an interview, investigators inclined to the opinion that Mrs. Johnson, operator of the automobile, was either so absorbed in conversation with her companions that she did not notice the warnings, or else became confused at the flashing light and bell warnings at the crossing and the shrill whistle of the approaching train.

Physicians at Emergency Hospital, where Miss Hopkins is lingering between life and death, were unable yesterday to state the full extent of her injuries pending the development of X-ray pictures, but said that the woman's skull was fractured and that her most serious injury seemed to be to the back, which may be broken.

Hope for Recovery Held.

Her general condition was thought to be fair, and more hope is now held out that she will recover than was entertained a few hours after the accident.

It is very doubtful, however, that any statement from the injured woman, who has not been advised of the death of her mother with whom she lived at 1517 Gales street northeast, and her neighbor of two doors' distance, will be available for the coroner's jury today. Dr. Nevitt said yesterday, however, that he did not think it necessary or expedient to hold up the inquest pending her recovery.

Lieut. Bowers has summoned the crew of the crack flier, who were released in the custody of their yard master, to appear at the inquest. The crew is composed of Engineer John Shewbridge, of Sandy Hook, Md.; Conductor Edward Hoodmale and Flagman Christopher Maddox, both of Baltimore.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

With the stock market deflated—the goal toward which the Federal Reserve Board has been working with the full approval of President Hoover and Secretary of Commerce Lemont ever since the Hoover administration came into office—the Government is now doing its utmost to stimulate credit and prevent the Wall street having a bad effect on business.

The Reserve Board has been buying acceptances to the tune of many millions, thus extending credit to export and import trade. It has even been pouring money into trade between foreign countries, on the theory that this would make world credit easier and thus afford lower rates for legitimate business.

In a few days it is the intention of the Reserve Board to begin buying Government securities. This, of course, will indirectly pour money into the market, and tend to stabilize credit conditions even more directly and lessen the effect of the drastic stock market deflation on business.

* * * * *

The Treasury Department stepped into the breach right after the big crash with a statement that business conditions did not justify the sacrifice of sound securities. But the situation was not without a silver lining to the Reserve Board, for there was a big decrease in its pet bugaboo—brokers' loans.

On a few subjects did President Hoover feel so strongly when he came into office as that the country was speculation mad. Mr. Hoover talked about this with friends even while on his good-will tour to South America. His attitude on this subject was in thorough accord with that of Adolph C. Miller, of the Reserve Board, and also with that of Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

Early in the spring the board began a crusade against stock speculation. It did its utmost to prevent Reserve Bank funds being diverted to Wall street, where the high rate for call money was most attractive. Even more important, however, it discouraged bankers from making collateral loans. This pressure was generally held responsible for the stock market break in March, right after brokers' loans had reach a new peak for all time then.

* * * * *

But despite every encouraging move toward deflation which the Reserve Board could make, despite its hope that the market would deflate itself, a big new bull movement started. As a matter of fact many securities, including most of the railroad stocks and American Telephone, did not on the crash last week get anything like as low as they were on the March break, and most of them did not reach as low levels as they had occupied early in the winter.

All along the critics of the Reserve Board policy have been saying that the restrictive measures employed would smash prosperity long before they would accomplish deflation on the stock market. Curiously enough the crash came when money was cheap. Instead of the call rate soaring on the day of the debacle it dropped lower than it had been for many months. It was lack of confidence, not lack of money, which caused the smash.

This is the feature which is disturbing to the Administration. That is the explanatio nof why the Treasury Department rushed out a statement that business conditions were sound.

* * * * *

But the fact that it was not exorbitant interest rates which aided the crash makes it rather difficult for the Reserve Board to function quickly to restore confidence. Had the final crash been brought about by the Reserve Board's pressure—held so firmly since last March—the board could quickly change the whole situation now by reversing its policy.

Actually it is about to do that. With prices more nearly at figures which the board regards as normal, there are indications already that the pressure against the banks on collateral loans will be relaxed.

It is expected that this, plus the purchasing of heavy blocks of Government securities, will have the effect of sharply reducing the rate on time money, thus making the purchase of securities which happen to be selling below their normal value attractive to investors for a long pull.

Actually it was the banks that stopped the crash, just as it was the National City Bank, in defying the Reserve Board and thus occasioning the wrath of Senator Carter Glass, which broke the force of the blow last March, when the soaring of call money to 20 per cent broke the market.

So the control of the credit situation still seems to repose outside the Reserve Board, a situation which the board is now about to attempt to correct, in the interest of making credit conditions easier for what it terms "legitimate" business.

VIRGINIA ELECTION RESULTS FIND DEMOCRATS UNEASY

ington. And two-thirds of this membership, it is believed, are qualified voters.

But it might be quite significant that the klan, as an order, has not taken any official action on any of the candidates. It has held two or three State meetings recently, at none of which was the campaign discussed. Of course, it may be that some secret, mysterious word has gone out to the klansmen, but it is a fact that the klan is not openly boasting of its support of the coalition cause.

If it is not wholeheartedly behind the coalition candidate, Prof. William Mosely Brown, then it is not living up to the dependency placed upon it by the coalition forces. There is no doubt of that. The coalition managers say very frankly that they are depending on the klan support.

Another Anticoalition Blow.

A further weakening of the coalition cause is seen in the outward attitude of the Antisaloon League. The league has officially endorsed all of the candidates except the Socialist candidate, which is to say that it has endorsed both Prof. Brown and the Democratic candidate, Prof. John Garland Pollard.

It may be that the league endorsed Pollard with its fingers crossed, not that Pollard is not admittedly as dry as anybody in the State, but that the league, with the Rev. David Hepburne as its head, is one of Bishop Cannon's arms.

Not to have indorsed Pollard, however, would have put Pollard in a pretty fix because he answered the league's quetionnaire just as aptly and promptly and satisfactorily as did Prof. Brown.

Concerning the Democrats' claim of the Eighth District, however, there is the admission that in this district is the only real enthusiasm of the campaign and that the enthusiasm is for Brown. This is explained, of course, by the fact that Lyon and the other first lieutenant workers of the coalition cause reside in the three counties adjacent to Washington.

Three Counties Conceded.

The Democrats, indeed, concede Arlington, Stafford and Fairfax Counties to the coalition. But they insist that the City of Alexandria and the other counties of the district will offset the majority of these three counties.

R. L. C. Barrett, the Richmond News-Leader's political expert, figures it this way: Alexandria City and Loudoun County for Pollard by small majorities. Fauquier by a substantial majority. Stafford for Brown by a small majority and King George by a sufficient Pollard margin to offset Stafford; Prince William County, 150 majority for Pollard; Culpeper, Orange and Louisa for Pollard by fair majorities, all of which would offset the Brown majorities in Fairfax and Arlington.

Quite gratifying for the Democrats if true.

ISLAND CASTAWAYS TELL OF ADVENTURE

Lake Sailors Rescued After Three Days in Snow of Barren Haven.

SAVED BY COAST GUARD

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A new chapter in Great Lakes history was written today as 32 sailors rescued from a barren island in Lake Superior told the story of their adventures.

With the comfort of Coast Guard headquarters here as a background in place of roaring breakers and snow, they related how their ship, the package freighter Chicago, had gone aground during a storm; how they had made their way to shore; signaled rescuers with a shirt, and after four days' isolation, with supplies running low, were brought to this port.

None of them had been affected by the experience; none except the captain, P. C. Farrell, of Buffalo. Chagrined over the mishap, his second in two years, he insisted that "if blame is coming to anybody, it must come to me." He was at the helm when the boat ran aground on Michipicoten Island, in Canadian waters.

Story of Cruise.

The log of the Chicago's last cruise was this:

On Monday, in the face of storm, it left Duluth for Houghton, Mich.

Tuesday morning Houghton Harbor was sighted, but the fierceness of the waves prevented an entry. With snow and spray lashing across the decks, the boat groped its way north through that day and night. At 10 a. m., Wednesday, the Chicago ran hard aground, on the reefs of Michipicoten.

Through Wednesday night the men stayed with their boat while it began to slide gradually off the reef until finally when it listed 50 degrees, they started for shore in two lifeboats. Making several trips through the crashing waves, they carried off supplies and a tarpaulin which, however, was not big enough to cover them all.

Thursday afternoon, with the blizzard and storm abating, James McDonald, second cook, climbed to a rocky promontory and sighted the Canadian steamer Goderich. He waved his shirt and the ship steamed in, followed closely by the tug Whalen, but the sea was so heavy a rescue was impossible.

One Goes 14 Miles for Aid.

Friday morning, one member of the crew stumbled through the rocks and underbrush 14 miles to the little settlement of Quebec Harbor. Five others tried the same trip, but failed as they became lost.

Saturday the supplies were so low that the seven youngest men in the party were designated to make the Quebec Harbor trip while the older men remained in camp. A few miles down the shore the Coast Guard cutter 119, which had steamed to the island, took them aboard. Less than an hour later all 32 men were safe on the 119 and its companion, the cutter Seminole. At midnight they landed here.

It was the second "bad luck" cruise for Capt. Farrell. Last year he ran a sister boat, the Ralph Budd, aground near Calumet, Mich.

This year, just on the other side of Michipicoten Island when the Chicago ran aground, was the Budd, being towed to the Soo.

Dairy Holdup Nets Bandit Pair $5,000

Two Officials Are Bound While Robbers Loot Atlanta Safe.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Two white-masked bandits this afternoon looted the local branch of the Pedigree Dairies, Inc., of $5,000 after holding up and binding the office manager and national treasurer.

The manager, Richard C. Brown, of Atlanta, and the treasurer, Clement F. Trainer, who arrived here Friday from the Philadelphia headquarters of the dairy corporation, were going over reports of the last week in a second story office when the bandits, armed with ancient revolvers, entered. The dairy executives were commanded to lie prone and the bandits bound their hands and feet with wire.

The bandits found the money drawer locked, released Brown and forced him to open the box. Tying him again, they departed by an outside staircase without attracting attention of the some 40 dairy employes working below.

Five minutes after the bandits disappeared Trainer and Brown freed themselves and reported the robbery to the police.

see," and Young as one whose name belongs to mankind "as a symbol of intelligent and effective statesmanship."

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt; Mrs. Douglass Robinson, sister of Theodore Roosevelt; Mrs. Owen D. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Governor of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Allen White and Mme. Curie.

Motion pictures were shown depicting Roosevelt's reception in European capitals, his return from Africa in 1910 and his reception in the United States.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Nine airplanes, flying in formation and led by Col. Clarence D. Chamberlin, dipped over Oyster Bay today in tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt. Today was the seventy-first anniversary of his birth.

Starting from Roosevelt Field, which was named for the late President's son, Quentin, who was killed in France, the planes first dipped in salute over Col. Roosevelt's birthplace on East Twenty-third street, Manhattan, then proceeded out over Long Island Sound to Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, his late home.

Mrs. Roosevelt, two of her sons, Archibald and Kermit, and their children were on the lawn as the airplanes passed overhead.

The fliers dropped flowers over the colonel's grave nearby and then continued bac kto the flying field.

A bronze tablet bearing the inscription "The Pew of Theodore Roosevelt, 26th President of the United States, for 30 Years, From July 1, 1888 Until His Death, January 6, 1919. Now Endowed in His Memory," was placed this morning on the front of the pew which Roosevelt occupied in Christ Episcopal Church, Oyster Bay.

Behind the tablet was placed a list of 425 who contributed to the memorial. The pew has not been occupied since Roosevelt's death; the family uses another when at the church.

Archibald Roosevelt unveiled the tablet. Kermit Roosevelt, Col. Roosevelt's widow, Mrs. Richard Roosevelt Derby (formerly Ethel Roosevelt) and Dr. Derby were present.

A laurel wreath sent by President Hoover was placed on Roosevelt's grave by Brig. Gen. Hugh Drum.

man, 23, his brother, died at an emergency hospital from a crushed chest and internal injuries.

Peter Botkin, Stockton, pilot of the plane, suffered possible internal injuries.

The brothers, who came to see the circus, had gone up with Botkin for a ride.

Hamilton, Ohio, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Two persons were killed and three others hurt in an airplane crash at the Ford Airport here today.

Reuben Floyd, 35, of Hamilton, and A. J. Miller, 19, of Middletown, both Negroes, were victims. Michael Mazum, 21, white, of Hamilton, and Charles Pennington, 21, of Middletown, a Negro, were injured seriously. The pilot of the plane, William Myers, 24, was hurt but not badly.

The plane was part of the Empire Circus, engaged in short entertainment flights. Spectators said Myers apparently thought a collision with another plane was impending. He banked sharply and side-slipped to the ground from a height of 150 feet.

Carl Jennewein, 23, of Hamilton, was killed at the Hamilton airport on the Dixie highway, south of here, late today when his parachute failed to function. He fell 2,000 feet, with his mother among the spectators. The plane from which he jumped was piloted by C. R. Mulberger.

American Killed in Mexico.

Mexico City, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—An American aviator named Bermean, flying a mail plane from Brownsville, Tex., to Mazatlan for the Air Transport Corporation, died today of injuries received yesterday. His plane crashed on a hill at Carvajal, 20 miles from Monterey, and both of his legs were fractured.

He was taken to the Monterey hospital, where he died.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The seaplane Buenos Aires had not arrived here early tonight from Havana. Dispatches said it had left Havana for this city this morning. Naval officials knew nothing of its proposed arrival.

Havana, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The seaplane Buenos Aires, of the New York, Rio de Janeiro & Buenos Aires Airlines, which arrived nine days ago en route to Buenos Aires, left at 10:43 a. m. for Pensacola, Fla., for repairs to her hull.

Experts last night found her unsafe for the flight to South America. The plane was piloted by Capt. Grooch and carried a crew of four men.

St. Louis, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The Washington University coed spends more money on tobacco products, movies, candy and ice cream than her male classmate, a questionnaire shows.

In one month, it was found, women students spend an average of $3 on movies, $2 at theaters, $3 for candy and ice cream, $4 for tobacco products and $3 for miscellaneous entertainment.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Navy Day, October 27, has a special import to the people of the United States this year, and it is indeed appropriate that the seventy-first anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt should be observed throughout the Nation at the same time.

The Rooseveltian brand of peace, backed by the power of America to maintain it, represents an attitude of national defense and security preparedness which will never be willingly forsaken by the people of this country. The United States Navy stands as the chief reliance of the American people, and the main assurance against aggressions that provoke war.

There never has been a time in this Nation's history when the United States Navy meant more to the people than it does now. There has never been a time when more dangerous pacifist propaganda has been directed against the Navy by misguided dupes and cunning foreign internationalists, who are shrouding their operations in the white cloak of idealism and world peace.

The drive against American naval power is directly in line with the lessons which come down through the centuries. Sea power and commercial supremacy go hand in hand, and a weakening of one means the weakening of the other. America is rapidly rising to a position of commercial supremacy, despite all that foreign competitors can do to check her. A Navy adequate to protect and defend American commerce is the only agency that can maintain the United States in its rightful position among the nations of the world.

America's colossal and ever increasing economic energy is expressing itself in overseas trade, which means commercial supremacy. It is idle for any nation or nations to attempt to stem the tide. But every statesman who has not been blind to history knows that commercial supremacy is dependent upon naval protection. If America can be duped into abandoning protection for its commerce on the high seas, or can be tricked into pooling its naval resources with other powers, there may be a real opportunity in the near future for crippling the commerce that is enriching America and arousing the envy of foreign rivals.

"The fleet's the thing," according to one of Theodore Roosevelt's slogans, and it applies with more force than ever today. Americans are not ready to accept the humiliation of seeing the seas controlled by foreign powers so that America's commerce must beg for permission to venture off shore.

Adequate naval security means protection for American commerce, and this in turn means that the United States will not be forced into war to maintain its rights. The American negotiators at the London naval conference, if there should be a conference, must keep before them the faithful promise of President Hoover to the people, to the effect that the national defense shall not be impaired by any agreement bearing the signature of America's negotiators.

RIVALRY FOR SAFETY.

Endurance contests have been so numerous in America that the public has long since tired of them. Waves of flag-pole sitting, dancing, talking, eating, refueling flights, and a dozen other types of endurance contests have swept over the country. Most, if not all, of them have been spectacular in nature and productive of little good. But at last the public has been offered an endurance contest which promises constructive results.

The Associated Industries of New York State has made arrangements for a contest to determine which firm can operate for the longest period without an accident. It is pronounced a "no-accident endurance contest." More than 1,300 firms employing 300,000 workers will take part. Special awards will be given to the industry which completes the greatest number of working hours without mishap, and to the firm carrying on for the longest period without any injuries to its employes.

This organization has been engaged in accident prevention campaigns for a long time and has accomplished much toward reducing deaths, suffering, disability and loss of wages. Preliminary reports on its endurance contest indicate results that are especially gratifying. By launching a campaign in the form of a contest they have appealed to the competitive spirit of their employes and aroused new interest in accident prevention. One of the big problems in activities of this kind is keeping the minds of workmen alert. The program of the Associated Industries seems particularly well conceived in this respect.

A few months ago another group of employers started a movement to make accidents appear ridiculous, on the theory that workmen would be much more careful if a mishap was likely to make them a laughing-stock. The hand of the psychologist can be seen in these movements. Campaigners against industrial accidents might make much more rapid progress if they would take a hint from these movements and introduce elements of novelty and human interest into their plans.

ITALY CLAIMS HER SONS.

Naturalized Italian citizens will be pleased to hear that Secretary Stimson has undertaken negotiations to have the Italian government recognize their American citizenship. The American embassy at Rome has been instructed to take the question up with Premier Mussolini's government with a special view to ending the impressment into military service of American citizens. At present the Italian government does not recognize the transfer of allegiance when one of its citizens becomes naturalized in the United States. The result is that such persons are liable to compulsory military service whenever they visit their native land.

The policy of the State Department is to warn such citizens of the risk they run by returning to Italy. But when once they are forced into the Italian military reserves there is nothing that can be done about it. The situation is very distressing to many Italians who are now loyal American citizens.

Italy is but one of the European countries in which this situation exists because of the absence of naturalization treaties. These governments are not anxious to conclude such treaties with this country, because few Americans are naturalized in other countries. It is clearly a case that demands initiative on the part of the State Department. This Government is obligated to protect the rights of its citizens, and treaties should be made to that end. To leave a naturalized citizen subject to seizure and enforced military service in his old home country takes away much of the value of citizenship. It is to be hoped that the State Department will press for action on a naturalization treaty with Italy and all the other countries where none is now in effect.

STUDYING UTILITY CONTROL.

The Senate has adopted a resolution directing the Federal Power Commission to make its reports and findings available to the special commission which is investigating utility and power companies for New York State. The Federal Power Commission has made extensive studies in this field and its records should prove invaluable to the New York commission. That State will be saved a considerable expense.

The resolution was amended so as to exclude the Federal Trade Commission when it was explained that the records of that body can not be properly made public until its survey is completed. But the New York commission was assured of its assistance in every proper way. This cooperation between Federal and State agencies working on the same problem is especially commendable in view of the fact that New York is pioneering in the field of State control over public utilities. It was pointed out in the Senate that this investigation may have a profound effect on the future regulation of utilities.

The adoption in New York of a commission plan of controlling utility companies was widely copied by other States. At present that is the most popular plan of dealing with utilities. In many instances the plan has not worked out satisfactorily, and there is a demand for a new approach to the problem. The present investigation is a result of dissatisfaction with the commission scheme in New York, and it is expected that it will result in recommendations for improvement. Whatever those recommendations are, they probably will influence public utility legislation in many States. The Federal contribution may, therefore, prove highly valuable to the whole country.

IS EINSTEIN RIGHT OR WRONG?

More than 40 years ago the scientists, Michelson and Morley, made an effort to determine the absolute motion of the earth through space in accordance with Newton's laws of mechanics. The experiments failed to produce positive results. It was this failure that led eventually to Einstein's fundamental postulate in 1905 that there was no such thing as positive motion. The present theories of relativity are mathematical consequences of this original postulate. Not all the scientific world, however, accepts the theory of relativity. Since it was originally propounded thousands of experiments have been made seeking to prove or disprove it, but scientists generally are still found divided into two camps, namely, relativists and Newtonians. It was for the express purpose of explaining how far the Einstein theory has been proved experimentally that American scientists of outstanding eminence were invited to address the annual meeting of the American Optical Society last week.

The guest scientists did not treat Einstein kindly. Charles Lane Poor, professor of astronomical physics at Columbia University, considering the results of the British and Lick Observatory eclipse expeditions, asserted that they showed not only a displacement of star positions away from the sun in a radial direction, as prefigured by Einstein, but also a displacement equally important in a tangential direction, which had not been predicted. The observed results, he said, "were selected and scaled," with one kind of displacement rejected as error and the other accepted as verification. Dr. Kelvin Burns, of the Allegheny Observatory, undertook to prove from his own records and those of other investigators that there is a variable shift of spectrum lines toward the red, with some lines not shifted at all, instead of the uniform shift that would follow under the Einstein theory. Dr. R. H. Morgan, of the United States Naval Observatory, called attention to the exceptional behavior of the planets Venus and Mars, and observed that the Einstein theory apparently is not applicable to them, although the behavior of the planet Mercury has long been held to prove the truth of the theory. Whereupon Dr. Poor interjected the unkindest cut of all to the effect that Einstein hit upon the proper rate for the precession of Mercury "through a mathematical error in his original paper, examination of which will show that his error arose from his ignorance of astronomical usages in computation."

Prof. Einstein had his defenders, but the meeting seemed to be generally antagonistic to his theory. So what is the layman to do? When Einstein makes a statement, the world rings with his praise. When scientists get together, they squabble over his theories. Is this a real world, or is it only relatively real?

THE WORLD'S ORE SUPPLY.

Floyd L. Darrow contributes an article to the November St. Nicholas magazine, in which he says that science sets eleven years as a time limit before the exhaustion of the known supplies of copper, twenty years before the exhaustion of zinc, and perhaps 150 years for iron. Except for copper and aluminum, he adds, no new deposits of workable ore have been discovered for a generation. What will the world do when its supplies of basic raw ores are exhausted?

Mr. Darrow says that the possibility of the junk pile is limited. Already half the copper, one-third the lead and two-thirds of the tin supply is reclaimed from junk. He admits that there is a possibility that new metals will be discovered and developed, but he suggests that their cost may be prohibitive. Aluminum, he says, is one of the most adaptable and valuable minerals known, and it is to be found in abundance, but it costs 22 cents a pound, as compared with three-quarters of a cent for a pound of iron, and no cheap way has as yet been developed for recovering it. Beryllium is even more valuable for varied purposes, but although it has been known for more than 100 years, it still costs $200 to obtain one pound.

Mr. Darrow paints a gloomy picture. But does he suppose, or does he want his juvenile readers to suppose, that the world faces a metal shortage? The mere fact that aluminum is expensive now does not mean that new and cheap processes for recovering it will not be developed when the need arises. The fact that copper and iron are now looked upon as fundamental essentials does not mean that as new and improved metals are developed they will not be superseded. The world will get along comfortably. There will never be fatal shortages of anything so long as man's fertile mind is kept busy concocting substitutes, which, more often than not, prove to be superior for many purposes.

REVIVAL OF SHIPPING

By ALFRED H. HAAG,
Director Department of International Shipping, School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University.

In the decade ending 1914, the average carried in American ships was slightly more than 10 per cent of the total value of our foreign trade, while in the decade ending June 30, 1929, it averaged better than 36 per cent. In view of the fact that the value of our total water-borne foreign trade in the decade just concluded has been more than double that of the decade ending with 1914, it is significant that the 26 per cent gain in the percentage of our foreign trade carried in American ships involved an advance from an annual average of $300,000,000 during the decade 1905-1914 to an annual average of $2,600,000,000 in the decade 1920-1929, an increase of more than 700 per cent in the value of our commerce carried in American ships.

In 1914, there were five American ships of about 23,000 tons engaging in the carrying trade between the United States and South America. Today, we have ninety ships of 550,000 tons in the same trade. We had one line from Pacific Coast ports to Asia under the American flag. Today, we have 140 ships of 1,000,000 tons in the trade with Asia. We had no services to the African continent in 1914. Today, we have nineteen ships of 148,000 tons.

The trade increases of these areas show a considerable expansion over the prewar period. The increase with South America over the 1910-1914 period amounts to 200 per cent; with Asia, during the same period, 380 per cent, and with Africa, 325 per cent.

In addition to the increase in the carriage of American commerce in American ships it is obvious that the influx of American flag services has contributed largely in the expansion of trade with those countries.

At the present time the ocean-going American merchant fleet employed in established lines in foreign and noncontiguous trades consists of 671 vessels of over 3,865,000 gross tons. This shows a 500 per cent increase in numbers and nearly 550 per cent in tonnage since 1914. With few exceptions these vessels are of 2,000 gross tons and over and 60 per cent of the number and 65 per cent of the gross tonnage are now under private ownership.

The enormous tonnage under the jurisdiction of the United States Shipping Board at the peak of its activities has been reduced to the present total of less than 3,280,000 tons, comprising 595 ships still remaining under control of the board, of which 229 vessels of 1,335,000 tons are in active service.

From the foregoing statement it is evident that steady and material progress has been made by Uncle Sam in assisting American shipping to regain its position on the seas.

To what proportions the water-borne foreign commerce of the United States has grown can best be appreciated by stating that during the year 1928, 5,100 vessels of 23,000,000 gross tons, flying the flags of 28 countries, transported 1,750,000 passengers and 100,000,000 tons of cargo valued at $8,000,000,000, passing through 1,600 American and foreign ports. The combined passenger and freight revenues approximated $1,000,000,000.

Millions of families are dependent for their livelihood on the 10 per cent excess production over our own needs for which foreign markets must be found.

To permit the greater portion of our commerce to be carried in foreign flag ships, because it can be carried cheaper, has proven conclusively to be an economic fallacy. The American people apparently realize this and are determined that the carriage of the greater portion of their commerce must always be controlled by their own ships.

A TITANIC REFORM.

It's a man-size job that Mrs. T. G. Winter, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has cut out for herself, says the Omaha World Herald. She is reported to be marching on Hollywood for the purpose of reforming the movies. But it is "stupidity rather than immorality" that is to be her point of attack.

If the movies really are stupid, as Mrs. Winter premises, they are either voluntarily or involuntarily so. They are stupid because they are produced by stupid people, or they are deliberately stupid because stupidity pays. In either case it looks as though the reformer had a labor to perform compared with which the seven of Hercules were of no consequence. If the stupidity of the movies is congenial it is just too bad, but it can't be helped. If it is deliberate it is the cause of stupidity that needs reforming and that's in the box office and not in Hollywood.

This isn't the first time the movies have been charged with stupidity, but it doesn't seem to have occurred to their accusers to show them up by going out and making some real bright movies for contrast. If the public is clamoring for better movies and is enduring the present output merely because it's the best there is, then a wonderful opportunity is lying around for some one.

PRAYER AND BUSINESS.

If through the business of the day
I can but one brief moment spend
Unselfishly to play the friend
And help another on his way
Then I, with better heart, may pray
To God for help at that day's end.

If I have put myself aside
For one brief moment to bestow
On one who, bowed by care or woe,
Asks for the aid I can provide,
Then I, who oft am trouble tried,
With better grace to God may go.

But if I count my busy day
Above the need I plainly see
And will not pause the friend to be;
What right have I in my dismay
At any time to God to pray
Beseeching Him to comfort me?

When the Gravy Train Comes, Be There With a Ladle

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"HITCH your wagon to a star," said the New England philosopher.

In less poetic language, make friends with a big guy.

To say that every young man who tries hard enough can win fame and fortune is manifestly absurd, for relatively few have the capacity for greatness and big jobs are scarce.

Success is for the few, but any one who is qualified may enter the contest with hope of winning. And a youth of second-rate ability may win first place if he knows how.

The trick consists in being lucky. Nearly all successful men are products of chance and confess as much. A work recently published by a serious student of men and events quotes scores of celebrated people who attribute their success almost wholly to chance. Opportunity came to them without consideration of their deserts and without effort on their part to attract it.

If this be true—that luck brings the opportunity and opportunity makes the man—it quite obviously is the part of wisdom to be lucky, but how can anybody influence chance?

The way is simple. Always have a bowl in hand when the gods are raining duck soup. In other words, stand where the lightning promises to strike.

Some time ago the manufacturers of cigarettes made a uniform increase in the wholesale price of the products. Next day the stocks of these companies went up several points.

At another time a long-awaited Government report caused the price of cotton to mount skyward.

If any man had possessed knowledge of these happenings before they occurred he might have purchased stocks in anticipation and cleared a tidy fortune. Doubtless somebody did know and did profit.

Those who knew were lucky. They were on the inside. They stood where the lightning hit.

Great and successful men usually are lonely. They suspect people. Experience has taught them that friends have designs on them. They are wary. But almost without exception they enjoy young men who look up to them and wish to learn.

It isn't difficult to scrape acquaintance with the man above you—and then with the next higher and the next.

If you have the right stuff in you the big man who learns to call you Billy will place good fortune within your reach.

Luck you must have, but you can camp where luck happens. Chance picks those in sight.

And yet—here is the fly in the ointment—being lucky enough to stand near when the great one offers his kingdom for a horse will avail you nothing at all if you lacked the foresight to bring a horse.

UNDEREMPHASIZING THE FOOTBALL NEWS.

(The Carnegie Foundation in its recent report on football evils cites overemphasis by newspapers as among them and urges that papers show more moderation.)

New Haven—It was announced by the Yale faculty here late today that the annual meeting of the Yale and Army football elevens had been held recently at the Yale Bowl. Routine matters were taken up, the announcemen said, and action of importance to the general public taken. No statement as to the score was obtainable.

• • • •

Cambridge—President Lowell, of Hartford, wishes to announce that the 1929 encounter between Yale and Harvard will be held as usual this year. No date was specified, however, the idea being to make it more or less of a surprise. Requests for a probable line-up were politely declined. "I don't think either college has given any thought to selecting an eleven as yet," said President Lowell. "At the last moment the faculties will simply send in their best scholars."

• • • •

Princeton, N. J.—It is reliably reported here that the Yale-Princeton football game will be played this year at New Haven. No confirmation was forthcoming, however, and the faculty refused to discuss the matter. Local newspaper correspondents said they had been unable to pin anybody down to a definite yes or no.

The names of the players on the Princeton squad have never been released and efforts to locate anybody who had seen the squad practice were in vain.

• • • •

Notre Dame—Mr. Knute Rockne wishes to announce that he has a terrible eleven this season and will make no effort to improve it.

"Football isn't everything," said Mr. Rockne

New York—The following announcement was sent out by Dean Hawkes, of Columbia, today:

"No photographers will be allowed on the field during any football games or workouts by the Columbia football squad. It is the desire of the athletes to keep their pictures out of the newspapers, and the Columbia faculty feels that they should be assisted in this aim. It is also requested that all pictures of the coaches and trainers now held in newspaper offices be burned."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Libraries Would Do Well to Exercise Judicious Censorship of Fiction, Says Optimist Talbott.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of October 26 "A Modern" says with reference to literary censorship: "Why is it necessary to censor any books? If a person does not like a certain type of literature he is not forced to read it."

Without considering the question of why "any books" should be censored, it is manifest that in the selection of works of fiction, public librarians should consult the wishes of the great mass of readers, and the great mass of public library fiction readers, a large part of whom are children, have no special desire for stories which will "add to their sophistication." Today the same as yesterday, world without end, the stories which healthy minded fiction fans demand are the old-fashioned kind, full of action, suspense, sentimentality, laughter, pathos and happy endings. They patronize their library in the unsophisticated belief that their demand will be supplied.

Such being the case, librarians, in order to preserve a seemly balance, should exclude even a greater number of so-called "sophisticated" works of fiction than they do. The Public Library of the National Capital, for instance, has more than enough of that class of stories, of which two such chef-d'oeuvres as Hergesheimer's "Cytherea" and Maugham's "Of Human Bondage" would alone be sufficient to leaven the whole lump. It may be well that censorship should be restricted in other fields of literature. But so far as public libraries are concerned a drastic censorship is not out of place in order that fiction may there continue to function as a source of simple-hearted entertainment for the average reader whose artless attitude is that of—

THE HAPPY ENDER.

When sick with care and soul gets sad,
The medicine for which it hungers
Is not a nostrum to be had
In storybooks sorrow mongers.

But sick of soul, to tears inclined,
As on my humble way I'm wending,
A blest relief I often find
In stories with a happy ending.

And when my soul is full of quirks,
Unduly soused in worldly folly,
Why, then, I dose my soul in works
Of deep philosophy, by golly.

When with excessive mirth unwell,
My mind with nonsense overweighted,
I seek a cure in books that tell
How arms and legs are amputated.

For jocunditis of the brain
I favor packs of gloomy diction,
But find it prudent to refrain
From psychoanalytic fiction.

I've said my say, and so you see
That in my time I've read a number
Of hardboiled books, though not for me
The clever tale whose theme is somber.

Is New York City Seeking a Dictatorship and Losing Its Sense of Democracy?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some one has said: "The end of government is not directly to make the people rich, but to protect them in making themselves rich." The way politicians of the major parties in New York conduct themselves at present leads me to believe they have lost sight of this. In fact, the electorate of New York City has many of the earmarks of a Latin electorate.

There is no more unfavorable criticism possible upon the lack of intelligence of the New York voters than the character of the promises and the arguments which are received with applause at the political meetings. New York City is becoming accustomed to the disregard of our forms of government and to the sight of vast and irresponsible powers being granted to a single individual. If this concept of the situation is not restricted to myself, one need not be a Socialist to predict for Norman Thomas an unusually large party vote.

The active control of public affairs must not be restricted in a democracy. Yet it begins to look as though New York City masses shift their responsibility to the shoulders of a few while they indulge in their craze for extravagant and sumptuous banquets! How like Rome! How like New York City. H. D. KISSENGER.

Speed in the Senate on Tariff Bill—With Reservations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Senate is making every effort to expedite the tariff bill. Oh, yes!

Several weeks ago the Senate instructed the Tariff Commission to convert all duties now levied on the basis of foreign values to what is known as the United States valuation—the price at which the articles actually sell on wholesale American markets. This was done for the obvious purpose of fixing duties on prices which are not subject to misrepresentation by foreign importers. But the chemical schedule is already based on domestic valuation, and the industry has been built up since the war on that basis. In spite of this fact, and in spite of the Senate's intention to change all rates to domestic value, the principle is to be challenged by the obstructionists. The one constructive amendment that the Senate has contributed to the administrative section of the bill is threatened. M. J. P.

What? Are Insurgents to Be Cast Out?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What about this dinner in New York to raise a slush fund by regular Republicans with which to beat the insurgent senators at the coming elections? Is Norris to be slaughtered? Is Borah to fall a victim to the fatal knife? Is Brookhart to be cast out?

What a tedious place the Senate would be if it contained only Republicans and Democrats! The insurgents are the life of the Senate, just as bootleggers are the life of society. B. B. M.

British Honor U. S. Writer Of War Book

Mrs. Marietta Andrews Gets Request for Autograph Copy.

By JEAN ELIOT.

FROM the British Imperial War Museum at South Kensington, London, has come a request to Mrs. Marietta Minnigerode Andrews for an autographed copy of her "Scraps of Paper" to be placed in its permanent collection.

This museum was founded by the British War Cabinet in 1917 to immortalize the efforts of the empire during the war and was established by act of Parliament in 1920 to commemorate heroism and patriotism and to provide records available to historians. Besides a remarkably fine collection of paintings by Sir John Lavery, R. A.; Sir William Orpen, R. A.; Mr. Muirhead Bone, the late Mr. John Singer Sargent and scores of other famous artists, with photographs of localities, incidents and individuals of wartime fame, the collection includes historical weapons, personal and official records, models of camouflage and all modern methods of warfare, ship models and a complete record of women's work in the war and Red Cross activities.

The book of Mrs. Marietta Minnigerode Andrews, which has brought her such a signal honor, deals not with broken treaties, but with letters, diaries, private journals and other intimate documents in which scenes of the Civil War are contrasted with scenes of the World War. Some are from her father, who fought through the War Between the States and others from her son, Mr. Eliphalet F. Andrews, who did his bit in the conflict two generations later in which most of Christendom was involved. With the gift to the war museum will go photographs of Mrs. Andrews' portraits of Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Col. Jefferson Randolph Kean and Maj. Cary Brown—for Mrs. Andrews is an artist with the brush as well as the pen.

"Scraps of Paper" came as a successor to "Memoirs of a Poor Relation" and "My Studio Window," and has the same salty flavor. The writer describes it as "A disconnected array of material, welded into a homogeneous tale of heterogeneous episodes, bound together by Marietta's own philosophy and strung on the thread of her personal point of view."

Mrs. Andrews, now at her home on Seminary Hill, near Alexandria, has been ill for a long time, but such honors as this one which has come to her have a tonic effect.

Tonic, too, must have been the tribute to her by Mr. Frederic William Wile, published recently in a magazine of book notes. For it inspired these rhyming lines, entitled "The Lamentations of Marietta:"

"My hands are cold,
My nose is hot,
I've sacrificed
My treasured 'knot.'

"I pace the floor,
I rave and weep,
I can not eat,
I can not sleep.

"I can not have
My picture 'took,'
Nor a read a word
In any book.

"They fill me up
With drugs and dope.
The graveyard seems
My only hope.

"Yet, lo! I 'smole'
A sweet, sad smile,
Readin' them words
Of William Wile!"

Social Affairs Follow Game At Princeton

Secretary Adams Guest of President Hibben at Tea.

Football shared favor with dancing and tea Saturday in Princeton, where several charming affairs followed close upon the heels of the Princeton-Navy football game. A tea given by President and Mrs. John Grier Hibben honored the Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams, and Mrs. Adams, who also shared honors with Admiral Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, and his party.

Secretary Adams and Mrs. Adams also were among the guests at a large dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Barnes Lambert at their home, Albemarle, in Princeton. The dinner preceded the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Lambert to present their daughter, Miss Rachel L. Lambert. Capt. George F. Neal, aid to Secretary Adams, was present. Among the guests were debutantes from New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

A tea dance was given in the Princeton gymnasium after the game in honor of the midshipmen and officers from the Naval Academy. The invited guests included Secretary Adams, Rear Admiral Robison and Capt. Snider, commandant of midshipmen.

Secretary and Mrs. Adams returned to Washington yesterday.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

GLAMOUR TO MARK GOVERNOR'S BALL

Richmond Event to Feature Grandeur of Ancient Virginia Days.

NOTABLES WILL ATTEND

Richmond, Va., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Just as the cavaliers and their ladies of the Old Dominion gathered in the palace at Williamsburg honoring their royal governors a century and a half ago, so will modern Virginia society assemble here Friday, November 1, to pay respect to the Commonwealth's rulers, past and present.

And according to Mrs. E. Burnett Farmer, director of this year's ball, the second in modern times, the current function will not lack the color and grandeur of the ancient events. The desire of the League of Women Voters, who revived the colonial rite, to make the governor's ball the greatest social event of a gay Virginia social season, is being realized, says the director.

800 Guests to Be Present.

The latest recapitulation indicates that some 800 persons will assemble in the John Marshall Hotel on its opening night, Friday, with Gov. Harry Flood Byrd and his predecessors in office, Henry Carter Stuart, Westmoreland Davis, A. J. Montague, Claude A. Swanson and E. Lee Trinkle, as the guests of honor.

When the governors enter the hotel ballroom they will be greeted by the marshals and patronesses chosen from all over Virginia as the official representatives of their communities at the function.

The lace and velvet of the Cavaliers will give way to the gay uniforms of the officers of various military and naval organizations, including the staff of Gov. Byrd and the staffs of governors of other States and men of rank in old Virginia regiments with histories dating to the war for independence.

As the Cavaliers tripped the minuet, Richmond debutantes with escorts designated by them will dance again the old dances.

Highway Map Is Decoration.

Modern ramifications will mark the 1929 ball from those of colonial days. When the guests are seated for the buffet supper, which is to be served in the course of the night, they will see reproduced down the center of the great table Virginia's concrete highway coursing south out of Washington through Richmond. Along the roadway, which is to be constructed in miniature by the Virginia State Highway Department, will be seen many meccas of tourists—those places where not only Virginia, but national, history was made.

Down the highway will be diminutive Mount Vernon, Christ's Church, Alexandria; Kenmore, Fredericksburg; St. John's Church and the Poe Shrine in Richmond; Monticello, home of Jefferson, near Charlottesville, and Pohick Church. More recent developments, such as the Richard Evelyn Byrd Airport at Richmond and the James River Bridge between Newport News and Norfolk, will be shown also. The construction of the miniature shrines has been in progress for some time at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, under the direction of the extension department.

Besides the Governor of Virginia, the governors of the 48 States have been asked to attend the ball, along with a list of other distinguished persons who have been connected in some way with Virginia and its history.

Among these latter are the Du Ponts of Delaware, who have a large part in recent industrial development in the State; John D. Rockefeller, jr., who is financing the reconstruction of ancient Williamsburg; Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has several times come to the Commonwealth as the guest of his friend, Gov. Byrd; and Admiral Cary T. Grayson, a native Virginian, who served as physician and personal aid to President Woodrow Wilson.

Dr. and Mrs. William Moseley Brown, of Lexington, and Dr. and Mrs. John Garland Pollard, of Williamsburg, are also among the distinguished persons invited to attend the ball. Miss Suzanne Pollard will represent Mrs. Pollard at the ball. Dr. and Mrs. Brown have not as yet officially accepted, owing to Dr. Brown's campaign engagements, but league officials state that both the leading candidates for governor will be present and take part in the grand march.

Invitations Accepted.

The league has announced that Gov. W. J. Kohler, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Kohler have accepted their invitations as have Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Governor of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Irene du Pont, of Wilmington, Del.

Last year, when the ball was first revived, Lady Astor, nee Nancy Langhorne, of Richmond, crossed the ocean with her daughter to attend and the event proved to be the greatest social function to be held in Virginia in many years.

Next week, officials of the League of Women Voters will issue a list of those who have accepted invitations to attend the ball.

Parachute Hangs Jumper to Bough

Soldier, Giving Exhibition at Congressional Field, Escapes Injury.

Private William H. Alvord, of Bolling Field, escaped injury yesterday afternoon at the Congressional Airport on the Rockville pike when the parachute he was using in a 1,500-foot exhibition leap from a plane entangled itself in a small tree on the edge of the field and dangled the jumper within a few inches of the ground until he was cut down.

Considerable excitement prevailed for a short time among the many spectators in witnessing the near accident, and many rushed to the tree, where Alvord joked about the situation.

Maj. Harry M. Horton, of 4439 Klingle street northwest, as pilot of the plane in the exhibition, declared that the force of a heavy southwest wind had been gauged accurately to allow the jumper to land in midfield. When Alvord had reached a 500-foot level, however, the parachute was struck by a stiff cross-current and swept against the tree, the major declared.

MARYLAND FARMERS VISIT CITY MARKETS

Groups From Twelve Counties Board Special Train for New York.

TRIP LASTS THREE DAYS

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 27.—Farmers and county agents of twelve Maryland counties nad farm experts of the extension service, University of Maryland, left today on a special tour, conducted by the agricultural development department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, on a three-day inspection of the terminal markets of New York City.

The express agency of the railroad and the extension service of the University of Maryland are cooperating in the tour, which is for the purpose of studying methods employed at the markets to which farmers are shipping their produce. The farmers and agents on the tour are from the counties traversed by the railroad, which are Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, Prince Georges and Washington.

A group of three persons, two farmers and the county agent of each county, compose those who are on the trip. Those from this county are Henry R. Shoemaker, county agent; Roy Schaffer, Braddock and Tobias Zimmerman, Ballenger district.

The special train left Oakland, Garrett County, this morning and arrived at Point of Rocks shortly before 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At this point the Frederick County delegation embarked. The next stop was in Washington. Baltimore was next and then the train proceeded to New York.

The fruit and vegetable auction, the arrival and handling of milk in cans and in tank cars at the New York Central milk platform, the Dairymen's League, the Dressed Beef Co. and the Pacific Egg Producers are some of the places which will be visited. Methods of handling different kinds of farm products will be observed. Certain portions of the tour will be made at early morning hours, or late at night, because of the fact that some of the markets are most active at those times.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, chief of the Maryland State Department of Markets, said the tour wil present a unique opportunity for seeing under official guidance just how marketing is done in the largest city in the United States. He added that the tour will be of great value to farmers by way of giving them first-hand information regarding the handling and sale of their products after they arrive at the market.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Davis, former Democratic nominees for President, are among fifteen new members of the national advisory committee of the Institute of Law at Johns Hopkins University, whose appointment was announced today by President Joseph S. by the jury. After talking with the group, he instructed the bailiff that if "any member of the defendant's family make any demonstration, you are to put them out of the courtroom immediately."

After the jury had filed in, juror No. 8, Frank E. Frantz, for the first time revealed as the foreman, stood up.

"We wish to inform the court," he said, "that we have not yet arrived at a unanimous verdict. A member of the jury wants to hear some more of the evidence.

"This one voting for ac—," but here the judge cut him off with the remark that the court was not concerned with how the jurors voted until a decision had been rendered.

With that the court clerk was put in the witness chair and he began to read the testimony of Miss Pringle. This, coupled with the testimony of the defense witnesses, was expected to take the greater share of the day.

In the court at the time the jury filed in was Pantages and his attorneys, along with his two sons, Rodney and Lloyd, and his daughter, Constance. The room was about two-thirds full.

District Attorney Buron Fitts and his chief assistant, Robert Stewart, gave the jury close scrutiny when they filed in.

Late yesterday there was for a moment a ray of hope that the mediation would end in a verdict, when the bailiff was called to bring them the instructions of the court. This faded, however, and the group recessed at 9:10 p. m., at its own request.

The trial of Pantages on the charge of attacking Miss Pringle in his private office opened October 1, and the case was given to the jury late last Friday afternoon.

After hearing reread the entire testimony of Eunice Pringle the jury went to dinner at 5 p. m. today.

Wurlitzer Firm Buys Rare Violins

Collection of Wanamaker, Valued at $650,000, Is Purchased.

New York, Oct. 27 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Wanamaker collection of rare violins, valued at $650,000, consisting of 64 rare instruments, including five Stradivarius violins and one Guarnerius, has been purchased by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. from Dr. Thaddeus Rich, of Philadelphia, it was announced today by Rudolph Wurlitzer, president of that company.

The acquisition makes the Wurlitzer collection the largest in the world, and brings the total value of the instruments owned by the Wurlitzers to approximately $3,000,000. Jay C. Freeman, curator of the collection, now has charge of practically all the rare instruments in the United States not owned by individual artists or violin collectors.

The Wanamaker collection was assembled by Rodman Wanamaker, from whose estate it was purchased after his death by Dr. Rich, formerly concert master of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. The collection contains the famous "Swan" Stradivarius, made in 1737, when Stradivarius was 93, valued at $75,000, and the "Ex-Allard" Guarnerius, valued at $100,000.

TOWER DEDICATED BY UNIVERSALISTS

substitute for a speech. Young explained he was unable to attend the ceremony because of his presence at the dedication of Hepburn Hall at St. Lawrence University in honor of Mme. Marie Curie.

Cites Ideas of Church.

Young, in his telegram, pointed out that the striving for international justice and world peace by the Universalists was in keeping with the traditional faith of the church. He attributed all that he had contributed toward these ideals to the teachings he had learned in the Universalist Church. Young said that he was deeply moved by the honor that had been bestowed upon him, and modestly added that he did not deem himself entirely worthy of the honor.

A prayer, expressing the hope that the tower would always rise in supremacy above the animosities that lead to war, was offered by the Rev. Herbert E. Benton, chairman of the commission of foreign relations and world peace.

The ceremony was presided over by the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church. The dedication, by the entire congregation, was made in the form of a responsive reading. Two hymns were sung, "The Coming Race" and "God of the Nations."

The new National Memorial Church is being erected at a cost of $500,000. It will be completed early next year.

GEN. SQUIER OBTAINS MONOPHONE PATENT

Invention Is Basis of Phone Broadcasting, as Well as Talkies.

AWARD ENDS LONG FIGHT

Winning a long fight, Maj. Gen. George O. Squier, retired, announced yesterday that his claim as the inventor of the monophone, a device for broadcasting over telephone wires, had been allowed by the United States Patent Office through an opinion just rendered by Law Examiner H. H. Jacobs. The contest centered on a patent issued in England and the United States which represented the Bell interests in the case.

The claim is pronounced by experts here, according to Gen. Squier, to be one of the broadest and most comprehensive claims ever allowed by the Patent Office and covers even talking movies in the home.

Pleased, Squier Says.

"I am naturally very much pleased," Gen. Squier said yesterday, having just returned from Freeport, Ill., where he said he inspected the monophone in operation experimentally.

"From a technical point of view, the beauty and elegance of the monophone invention is its simplicity. A whole city may be saturated with multiple superprograms, with but a few watts of power, instead of kilowatts as required in space radio. Its installation in its simplest form at a telephone switchboard does not require so much as a screw driver and although it is a one-way telephone the housewife may change it from room to room by using a standard lamp socket operated exactly as she now uses her flatiron.

New Frequencies Used.

"The monophone employs a band of frequencies never before used either in space radio or in the so-called 'carrier art' as developed in the Bell system. This band is also entirely above and out of the way of the band used by wired radio on power lines for broadcasting service.

"Space radio is entirely unsuited to these days of congested steel skyscrapers and it must be reserved for the long-haul in the open country, for aviation and for ships at sea.

"Some 30 years ago both the telephone wires and the electric light wires were ordered underground by city authorities because they offended the eye and interfered with traffic in the streets. In like manner within a short time space radio will be also ordered underground and carried by these same wires, because it offends the ear instead of the eye and interferes with radio traffic."

Victim of Radium Reported as Fair

Woman Said to Be Dying by Slow Poisoning Not Yet on Critical List.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A victim of radium poisoning, Mrs. Quinta McDonald, of Orange, N. J., was reported in "fair" condition today at Memorial Hospital. She is one of five New Jersey women whom physicians sixteen months ago declared doomed because their systems had absorbed radium from luminous paint which they applied to watch dials while employed by the United States Radium Corporation, of Orange, N. J. Their systems absorbed the radium when they pointed the paint brushes with their lips.

Although she was reported last night to be dying, Memorial Hospital authorities today said Mrs. McDonald's name had not yet been entered on the "critical" list.

One of the victims is Mrs. McDonald's sister, Mrs. Albina Larice, of Orange. The others are Mrs. Edna Hussman, Hillside; Miss Katherine Schaub, of Newark, and Miss Grace Fryer, of Orange.

Each of the women sued the corporation for $250,000 and in a private settlement of their court actions, each was awarded $10,000 cash, a $600 annual pension and medical attention.

COMMONS TO HEAR RACE BAN PROTEST

Hampton Alumni President's Charge of Discrimination Stirs England.

ISSUE BECOMES ACUTE

London, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The question of the color bar against Negroes in England will be raised in Parliament by James Marley, Labor member, at the earliest opportunity, he announced today. Protests by two widely known American Negroes against alleged discrimination because of their race has raised the question in England for the first time in an acute form.

Marley has assured Robert S. Abbott, of Chicago, of his intention of pushing the matter in Parliament. Abbott, who was a member of Gov. Frank O. Lowden's race relations commission in 1919 and president of the Hampton Institute Alumni Association, had complained of discrimination against him on the British liner Aquitania.

Paul Robeson, American Negro singer, recently stated that he and his wife were refused admittance to a prominent London grill room, although they were to be entertained there by white friends. Marley wrote of this instance to Prime Minister MacDonald and received a letter in answer saying, "It is not in accordance with our British hotel practice, but I can not think of any way in which the government can intervene."

Marley said today that the Society of Friends (Quakers) had decided to call a conference and set up a joint council of representative Negroes and white sympathizers to deal with the matter.

BRIAND IS NAMED IN NEW CABINET

Daladier is regarded tonight as very likely even by his bitterest opponents.

Daladier quoted M. Briand as saying, "I accept collaboration in the government union with so much the more pleasure because I tried myself to constitute a government of the left without success."

The Socialist executive committee had voted today, 36 to 12, to participate in the government. Daladier had outlined his plans to them last night. No corroborations was available from Briand tonight. Daladier's supporters expected that Briand's acceptance would bring from 50 to 60 votes from the Moderate groups in Parliament. Those votes added to 124 Radicals and 101 Socialists would give Daladier a workable if slim majority.

The national council of the Socialist party which meets tomorrow is expected to confirm permission for the Socialist deputies to enter the Daladier cabinet. Daladier, it was believed, probably would be ready to announce his cabinet late Tuesday or early Wednesday. He probably will appear before the chambers Thursday.

Former Premier Caillaux played an important part in the Radical deliberations today. Political circles tonight entertained a growing belief that he might be called to fill an important position in the Daladier cabinet. Many hitches are expected, however, between the Socialists and Radicals when the portfolios are distributed.

Daladier's success in persuading Briand to retain the foreign affairs cabinet is considered a master stroke in Radical quarters. It was received with corresponding gloom by the Moderate and Conservative groups.

Daladier, little radical school teacher, who from a rather modest political situation among the groups of the left has flashed like a meteor across the international political horizon, is the son of a village baker.

Left an orphan at an early age he was educated at the state's expense. He proved a brilliant student. Entering normal school, where Eduard Herriot, former premier, was one of his teachers, he qualified as teacher himself and taught in a small town before the war.

Has Excellent War Record.

Daladier has an excellent war record. He was decorated and cited several times. As a soldier he was "adopted" by Mlle. Laffonte, daughter of Dr. Laffonte, noted scientist. As a war godmother she met Daladier while he was on leave.

Daladier entered politics through the influence of Herriot, whom he replaces as head of the Radical party. He is not a wealthy man.

BROWN CAST VOTE FOR SHORT BALLOT

tion of these amendments in our State constitution."

The coalition candidate denounced as "contemptible" the questions as to how he voted addressed to him by Jonathan C. Day, a Democrat, during Brown's speech at Suffolk Friday night. Dr. Brown said it was "hardly conceivable" that Day did not represent Democratic "machine leaders," since Day was a regular Democratic speaker and that he would never answer Day nor any other person under like circumstances. Dr. Brown refused to say "yes" or "no" to Day's question at Suffolk, asserting that it was more important to determine what to do with the "short ballot" than to determine how anyone voted.

In conclusion, the coalition candidate called on John Garland Pollard, his Democratic opponent, to state whether or not he would support Al Smith for President in 1932 as he did in 1928 if Smith should again be the nominee of the party.

Each Year More Mothers Treat Colds Externally

Dangers of "Dosing" Colds Now Avoided by Use of Vaporizing Ointment

When Vicks VapoRub was introduced, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it, because it is just rubbed on and can not upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today the whole trend of modern medicine is away from needless "dosing."

External Treatment Best.

As more and more mothers adopted this modern external way of treating colds, the fame of Vicks spread until it is now the standby for colds—adults' as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Now "26" Million!

Ever-increasing demand for this better way of treating colds is shown in the figures of the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

In the good old days, beyond recall, Miss Annie Nichols wrote a play called "Abie's Irish Rose." It ran something like 20 or 30 years on Broadway and is still doing time in the hinterlands, with a hitch or two in the movies. As the historians have it, before "Abie" piled up all those millions for its beautiful and bouhtiful author she, unfortunately, had to peddle the script from one manager's office to another. Finally it was accepted—and then the dramatic critics had at it. How those gentlemen of the press dealt with "Abie's Irish Rose" is what the twentieth century wise crackers call "nobody's business." In Miss Nichols' press department there is a saying to the effect that it took her six days to write "Abie" and three critics two years to finish panning it, and still the work goes on, and on, and on—till death do us part.

Well, this is all by way of getting around to the fact that Miss Anne Nichols has written herself another play. It is called "She Walked Home?"—and, if you will note, there is a big question mark right after the title. The new play got under way last night in Poli's Theater—and here is another chance for history to repeat itself. Probably this play, too, was written in six days. Of course, since Miss Nichols has amassed a fortune, and is a producer in her own right as well as an author, "She Walked Home?" was not peddled from one office to another; but—and here is the certainty: The dramatic critics are going to pan it. Merciful heavens! How they are going to pan it! In its present form, they will be perfectly right. It is, in a word, terrible. If "She Walked Home?" ever gets to New York, where all the good dramatic critics live, there will be an old-fashioned Roman holiday on the banks of the Hudson—or, is it the East River?

It may be that New York theatergoers do not take their scribes seriously—and that what is meat for the dramatic critic is poison for the cash customers, and vice versa. This being so, and the case of "Abie's Irish Rose" recalled, "She Walked Home" has a hundred-year run ahead of it. Otherwise it won't last a week. At its going, only the cast will be heartbroken.

In mixing the ingredients for this, her latest work of the theater, Miss Nichols let her memory slip a noose and go back to the plot structure of "Abie." Not juggling the Irish and Jewish formula again, she made contrasts this time between the cities of Fifth avenue and the poverty of Railroad Flats, down where the O'Hearns live. It seems that Peg o' the O'Hearns is a cabaret singer. Jack Armstrong, scion of riches, is in love with her. At a party one night in the cabaret Jack passes out—pie-eyed, as they say—and Peg takes his car home, leaving hi mflat. She is one girl who didn't walk home. In the wee early hours that follow, Jack lands in his bed with a boy companion, dresses the boy up as a bride and Peg and her father walk in—on a scene that breaks the romance.

This sounds like a fraternity prank, but it is a central part of the terrible tale told these nights on the boards of Poli's—but only part of it, for they all assemble, the Armstrongs and the O'Hearns, two weeks later in the kitchen of the poor family, and there everything comes out all right, as in "Abie's Irish Rose."

It comes out all right, and it does n't. Forsooth, there isn't much in the way of drama in the latest litry effort of Miss Nichols, nor much in the way of entertainment either. It may be that rewriting will save the opera, and it may be that "She Walked Home?" is beyond recall. There is no telling. That old stager, Clifford Brooke, directed it, and he may turn the story completely around, starting with the kitchen scene as the first act and ending in the cabaret. It must be remembered that Anne Nichols put over "Abie's Irish Rose" after everybody and his brother said it couldn't be done, which proves, of course, that miracles do happen.

Several competent actors and actresses—amongst them Frank Beaston, Bob Cummings, Minnie Dupree and May Vokes—struggle along in "She Walked Home?" but, transposing what the sailor said to the captain, "God help the actors in a play like this."

GAYETY

"Bowery Burlesquers" a production which for the past five years has given entertainment to Burlesque fans opened at the Gayety yesterday.

Babe Almond, a classy looking little Soubrette, shares the feature part of this cast with "Funny Clyde Bates," comedian.

Miss Almond one of the cutest and smallest soubrettes to visit here this season, easily wins the audience. She not only partakes in those numbers usually given the featured woman, but predominates in many minor bits; which adds to her popularity.

Bates, one of the funniest comedians on the Mutual Circuit, keeps the crowd in laughter throughout the performance. He presents many new skits, and an abundance of good jokes.

Jimmy Heyman, and his bits of dancing, is another sparkling part of this show. Harry Conners, Flo Heyman, Nana May Olive Ward and Abe Gore assume principal parts.

A colorful chorus in modernastic costumes to match the scenry coupled with some splendid lighting effect, add to the quality of "Bowery Burlesques."

National Forum.

Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of Count Leo Tolstoy, will formally open the National Forum of the Jewish Community Center, with a talk and symposium on "Russia" Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock. His main subject on Wednesday evening is "Russia Before and Since Bolshevism." He will also touch on Russian art, literature and music.

MacDonald Out Of Sight of Land

Premier Has Last Look at Canada on Leaving Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Steamship Duchess of York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, whose energies in recent weeks have been largely devoted to "narrowing the Atlantic," is seeing that ocean at one of its narrowest points. He has covered nearly 1,000 miles of the voyage to Great Britain, but he still could see North American shores up to noon today, when the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Straits of Belle Isle were left behind.

Nosing her way toward the Arctic on the last north Atlantic passage of the year, this vessel will reach Liverpool in four more days. The weather today was fine, cold and sunshiny.

The premier had a busy Sunday morning, exercising in the gymnasium and attending church services. His daughter, Ishbel, rested. Later MacDonald, like any other passenger, took part in the life boat drill.

Auto Slides Off Jack, Crushes Man Beneath

He was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated by Dr. John Baber, who said that his condition was undetermined, but Nasrey nevertheless went to his home.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO."

If October 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:20 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:45 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Business worries and hindrances are indicated for this date, but there will be other compensations in a mental and spiritual way. Social contacts will be uplifting, helpful and pleasant. Romantic adventures will come your way.

The child born this October 28 will be very versatile and capable of doing several things well. It will be rather dependent upon others, and will lean upon any one who is willing to be its prop. It will be very fond of light reading and the less active sports.

Nature has thoroughly equipped you for the battle of life. You are a "good liver," and a "good fighter." You can put up with the worst and enjoy the best without a murmur. Your humor and gayety of spirit are probably two of the greatest factors with which you are endowed. They take the sting out of many of life's hurts—you laugh when others weep.

You are wholesome, human and understanding. There is nothing smug or strait-laced about you. You are interested in most things that other folk find attractive. You are a "good sport," but a decent one. You resent and fight all the forces that are working to defile, degrade and destroy the cleanliness and beauty of human life. At heart you are a humanitarian, and are extremely generous and self-sacrificing.

You are very original, and your individuality is expressed in many ways. Your work is not mechanical. You are very seldom an imitator. You would rather be a poor "first edition" than the most clever "second edition." In dealing with people you take into consideration the psychology of the person with whom you are in contact. You are very clever in your character interpretations. You are very charitable and tolerant in your criticisms.

Successful people born October 28: James Cook, explorer.
Erastus Fairbanks, manufacturer and governor.
Eliphalet Remington, manufacturer, Remington rifle.
Robert Treat Paine, philanthropist.
Birge Harrison, artist.
Burdette Boardman Brown, child welfare secretary.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

Charging that national as well as independent stations are offenders, Judge Ira E. Robinson, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, severely criticized the practice of quoting prices on commodities as parts of advertising programs and declared that he did not believe "the people are going to stand for the advertising methods now being used by broadcasters." The station operators, he said, "are being forced to quote prices and resort to direct selling methods by the advertisers themselves."

A revulsion on the part of the listeners will result, the chairman asserted, and the stations which employ such advertising methods will be fined out.

"It is a strange thing that we cannot support the 600 stations which have these valuable franchises without resorting to such offensive methods," Judge Robinson concluded.

That being the way the judge feels about price quoting, we would like for him to have been listening in with us the other night. A station advertised some groceries over the air, quoting "greatly reduced prices." A lady promptly wired in ordering 10 pounds of prunes and quite a list of things.

Whereupon the station announcer, broadcasting the customer's name and city far and wide, told her they were not doing a C. O. D. business and she would have to send the money before the groceries could be delivered.

Even in the best hours, advertising announcements on the radio are 30 per cent longer than they were a year ago. Testimonials have been injected to a greater degree. There is sampling done over the air. They say if you will send your name and address, "we have a little surprise for you." What they send is a sample.

Two good programs last week were Chic Sale, during the Victor Hour, of whose appearance this newspaper had no advance notice, and the Metropolitan Church Choir of Chicago, at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night over WLS, of Chicago. The latter sang the old-fashioned darky melodies with a swing that almost brought the cotton plantation and the Mississippi steamboat before one's eyes.

There is probably not a chance of hearing Chic again in a blue moon, but we have written Edgar Bill, the wide-awake manager of WLS, to find out if the jubilee singing choir appears regularly.

At least two persons in Washington—Lee Nixon, of the Republican national committee, and Nelson B. Bell, of The Post, knew Roxy intimately before he became famous as a broadcaster and theatrical impresario. They were all together in Porto Rico. Nixon was postmaster at San Juan and Bell was superintendnet of mails.

"Roxy was in the Marine Corps, stationed at San Juan Harbor," Nixon said, recalling those days. "He was a mail order; and when a steamer arrived from the States, Roxy would come to the postoffice and Bell would load him up with a few bags of mail which Roxy would carry on his back down to Marine headquarters.

"Gloria Swanson, another celebrity in the motion picture world, also lived in Porto Rico at one time. She was the daughter of an Army officer in San Juan and lived only a few blocks away."

Due to the early hour yesterday afternoon, it was not possible to pick up the premiere of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra on its ambitious Canadian coast-to-coast hook-up, sponsored by Sir Henry W. Thornton, K. B. E. (the only knight who ever came from Indiana), chairman of the Canadian National Railways.

However, it may interest Sir Henry to know that his stations are frequently heard in Washington, notably CNRN at Montreal. It may be found on the dial between WSB, Atlanta, and WGN, Chicago.

The Canadian National, under the leadership of Sir Henry, was the first railway in the world to equip its trains with receiving sets. That was years ago and most of our railroads have not got them yet. His latest experiment is equipping trains with radio telephones so that passengers may telephone en route while the train is in motion.

Maj. H. H. Frost, who looks more like a dashing movie star or college athlete than a radio manufacturer, hardly took time to warm his new chair as president of the Utah Products Co., in Chicago, before absorbing the H. H. Eby Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia, and now has his eye on three other companies, including a tube manufacturer and a cabinet manufacturer, which are expected to become part of a brand new Frost merger within a short time.

Excerpts from the Dutch Masters Minstrels, whose next broadcast will be from WBAL at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow night:

Bones—My brother is hunting in Africa and he is going to send me some lions' tails.

Interlocutor—Do you mean to tell me that your brother is sending you lions' tails all the way from Africa?

Bones—Well, here is what he writes: "I have captured two lions and am sending you de-tails."

Crown Prince's Escape From Death Celebrated

Naples, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of the New York diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, telegraphed King Victor Emanuel today that a "Te Deum" was sung aboard the liner Saturnia in thanksgiving for Crown Prince Humbert's escape from assassination.

In congratulating the king and the crown prince, he said he was "interpreting the thought of the American people."

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

OCTOBER 28.

Augusta Victoria, first wife of former Kaiser Wilhem II of Germany, was born this day, 1858. She died in 1921 in exile with the former emperor at Doorn, Holland. When they were married, in 1881, she was Princess Augustus Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein and he was Prince Wilhelm of Prussia. The empress bore him six sons and one daughter. She published one book, an acount of her trip through Palestine. The former kaiser has remarried.

Anna Elizabeth Dickinson, called the "Joan of Arc of the Civil War," was born this day, 1842. By her youth and eloquence she aroused enthusiasm wherever she spoke. Slavery was her principal topic, but she also spoke and wrote on abstinence and woman suffrage. She was the author of two successful plays, "Anne Boelyn" and "Mary Tudor," in which she played the title roles.

Rosalie Slaughter Morton, noted American physician, was born this day, 1876. For her services overseas during the World War she was decorated nine times by various governments. She represented 6,000 women physicians on the Council of National Defense during the war.

Ardanse Interprets the Mode

White polka-dots on light grey bodice, dark grey skirts of crepe de Chine, with plain grey scarf-collar. (Courtesy of Ardanse, Paris.)

At the Maison Mag-Helly, the winter collection possesses a considerable number of distinctive features. Most of the attractive morning outfits have a coat, usually of brown or olive green, a skirt of the same material, and a bodice of lightweight jersey. A few of the coats are in blue, red or black.

An individual movement is given to the coats by a broad flare at the back and at one side. Many of the manteaux feature novel pocket treatments. Ermine is a favorite material for trimming them. A tweed coat of royal blue is trimmed in gray ermine, the pockets being edged with it and the line prolonged almost to the hem by stitching. Several black coats are likewise trimmed in ermine, one having bell-shaped sleeves brought into a cuff, and another having two long points applied to the sleeve, reaching above the elbow.

• • • •

For the afternoon gowns, panne velvet, moire and broche velvet and satin are much used, the dresses being closely fitted to the figure.

One charming evening gown is of black panne velvet, with a rather loose bodice in front, deep back decolletage with small buttons below, and the hem in a wide scallop.

They are truly beautiful . . . outside as well as inside! And although it is nothing new to give men gifts of books, it is comparatively new to give a man a gift of a book that you know will be a treasured one in his library, and that you have worked on with your ten clever fingers on the outside to the extent of making it a thing of rich and enduring beauty.

• • • •

This week's leaflet tells you very simply how to make such beautiful covers, not only for books but for boxes, candles and vases as well. We have told you how to make book-covers before, but this leaflet presents some new ideas and processes. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

• • • •

Novel, and rather lovely . . . so we thought you might like to see it!

It's an Ardanse idea, the gown we sketched for you today . . . a gray printed crepe de chine, with the all-over design much darker on the circular skirt than on the blouse. The graceful bertha scarf effect can be worn in several ways.

Christmas Box Suggestions.

Every lovely lady wants and needs, and really should have an evening bag, and one made of old, old, priceless tapestry, enhanced with jewels, can take the place of several bags of various colors by harmonizing with her several gowns.

And what a delightful Christmas gift it makes!

If you haven't an attic full of mysterious trunks and boxes of old and lovely things, you can buy a piece of interesting tapestry at some antique shop. If it doesn't look ancient enough, then do dip it in coffee or in a solution made of gasoline and a bit of Vandyke brown oil paint.

You'll be pleased, we feel sure, by the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post.

Machines Which Save Labor.

Have you recently watched the digging of a basement for a building? If so, the chances are good that you saw a steam shovel at work. I have little doubt that you paused in your walk in order to watch the machine. There is something fascinating about the way the giant mouth scoops up the earth.

The steam shovel was invented in 1840, but the spread of its use has been slow. Only during the present century has it become a common sight.

The Brain of Man Makes Man a Better Digger.

Two men manage the wheels and levers which operate the crane and the dipper. Each dip brings up about 65 cubic feet of earth or loose rock. During the course of a working day, a steam shovel will dig up about 70,000 cubic feet of sandy soil.

The steam shovel is a good example of how inventors are cutting down the amount of toil. Two men running this machine will do the job faster than 20 men digging with spades.

If you think about the subject, you will bring to mind other ways in which machines save labor. In the old days, shoes were hand made. The shoe-maker had to spend fifteen hours, or even more, in making a single pair of shoes. Nowadays factories turn shoes out by the thousands.

A century ago, all nails were hand made. It was long, hard work. Today a nail-making machine can produce 60,000 nails in an hour.

Electric machines in the larger bakeries can mix and bake 30,000 loaves of bread in a day. Think of the time women used to give to bread-making.

Harvesting and threshing machines cut down the amount of work to be done on farms. A high-grade harvesting and threshing machine can cut, thresh and clean 1,000 sacks of grain in a single day.

Wherever we look, it is the same story. Machines are taking the place of human muscle. As time goes on, the working day is likely to become shorter and shorter. People will have more time for reading, traveling and play.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A HABIT FORMING DRUG.

At a recent meeting of the Southern Medical Association several physicians expressed emphatic opinions favoring amendment of the Harrison drug act so that it included veronal and other habitual drugs. These drugs at times surpass opium, morphine, heroin and cocaine in the harm they do. A year or so ago we recorded some Pennsylvania physicians who were of the opinion that the use of veronal and other barbituric remedies should be regulated by law.

Dr. W. C. Ashworth, of Greensboro, N. C., says the British nation and, in fact, most European nations, have laws for the control of veronal. We are perhaps the only highly civilized people who have not imposed restrictions on its use. He regards veronal as a habit forming drug and has observed cases that had a hangover just as there is after the use of opium and comparable to the "dark brown taste" after one has been liquored up.

Dr. P. V. Anderson says the addition of 10-15 grains of veronal to a stiff swig of whisky has become almost a habit in certain parts of Virginia. The physiologic effects of veronal and whisky are preferred by addicts to the effect of other drug taken alone. Most of those who have written of veronal addiction have referred to the rapid and great mental deterioration which it causes. It seems to harm the mind more rapidly than morphine does.

However, one who takes morphine in small doses can go a long time without slipping much mentally and probably the same can be said of the veronal addict who sticks to small doses. The disposition and the emotions suffer especially as a result of the habitual usage of considerable doses of any member of the barbituric group.

Dr. Ashworth called attention to the fact that there were certain types of people who should avoid veronal and other drugs of the group. They were those who just seemed to have a natural hankering for taking medicine, whether it be purgatives, headache medicines, tonics, aids to digestion, or what not.

Dr. Anderson said all neurasthenics should avoid these sleep-producing remedies. Neurasthenia is really a mild, depressive manifestation and all so affected pick up habits readily.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Railing at Fate.

What a lot of energy we all waste railing at fate. "If we could have known that this or that was to happen; if we had ever dreamed a man could turn out to be such a mess, &c., &c." Well, we could not know, and that's that. And it certainly is a blessing that we can not know in advance how things are to be. If we did know, we would have all the misery for years in advance and then the actual misery, when it arrived; for right here, let us admit that knowing would never stop us! Nancy might know exactly what a mess darling Gregory would turn out to be as a husband, but would that stop her? Not so long as he had a "line" that appealed to her, not so long as he could flash a row of white teeth, or wear evening clothes in just the way she liked a man to wear evening clothes. And here's a Nancy for you!

"He has been married before, and he jilted me to marry her, but never for a moment have I stopped caring for him. He is the most fascinating person I have ever seen on this earth and I simply can not consider any one else.

"All the time that he was married, he forgot me completely. I just did not live, so far as he was concerned. And I tried to marry to forget, but I could not, and so jilted the man I had promised. That was three years ago. And now my real love is back home. He is drinking and acting awful in general. But he immediately looked me up, and started all over again his old line. And just as before, I believe him again. He tells me now that, of course, I was the only woman and he should have known it, and he wants me to marry him. My parents are up in arms. They will not receive him, as we had 400 invitations out for our wedding, when he just eloped with the other girl whom he had known only seven weeks. My dad says if he ever catches us together he will thrash him. Now, what I want to ask is this: Could it be possible that, although, he made a very objectionable husband to the wrong woman, he might make an all right husband to the right one?

"NANCY."

And there you are! Ten to one Nancy will marry this light-headed mortal, give up family and home and friends, be made miserably unhappy, be abused and neglected and finally deserted—and in her heart she knows all these things are coming to any woman who marries this so-called man, yet who can stop Nancy? For the sake of the few short hours when the world will stand still for their rapture, Nancy will trade future and past and present and take the consequences! How dishonest we are when we rail at fate! Fate could come marching with a jazz band and loud speaker telling us everything that was in store for us, and would it make any difference? Not in the least.

Experience is the only teacher. Experience is the only thing that means anything. If we live through an experience, then we know, but the heavens themselves could open to warn us and we would go our way and have experience.

So will Nancy. And in five years her "fascinating" lover will be telling some other woman that he never really loved before—and both he and she will believe it. Too bad! But too true!

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

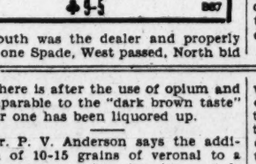
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction Bridge novice.)

When one player has a major suiter (i. e., a hand which contains five cards in each major suit), it is generally much more advantageous to play the hand with the partner's hand as the trump, with the major suit that best fits than at No Trump.

Players always should remember that if they can find a major suit that fits both hands, game is more probable with it the trump than at No Trump. It takes one trick more, but generally ten tricks are easier to make with a suit that fits both hands, than nine tricks are at No Trump.

To illustrate, we will take a hand I saw played recently.



South was the dealer and properly bid one Spade, West passed, North bid one No Trump, which was followed by three passes.

East started by leading his fourth best Club and East and West won five Club tricks. East then led a Diamond which North took and led the Ace and then a small Heart. East won the second Heart and cashed his King of Diamonds; so the declaration was defeated by one trick, the adversaries taking seven.

At the end of the hand an argument arose between North and South. South claimed that North with the Clubs unstopped, should not have bid No Trumps. North claimed that South should have bid Hearts on the second round instead of passing the No Trump.

North was quite right in both his bid and his claim. Having less than normal support for his partner's Spade, he had to deny. He could do this equally well by bidding two Diamonds or one No Trump; but the Diamond bid would be misleading as it would indicate strength in that suit only; furthermore, the No Trump was far more apt to win game. After North's no Trump, South should have bid his Hearts and thus given North an option between playing with that contract and rebidding his No Trump. At Hearts the Declarer would have made ten tricks, losing two Clubs and one Heart; in other words, four more tricks could be made with a Heart contract than at No Trump.

NEGRO LIFE TOPIC OF CONCLAVE HERE

Women Speakers at Initial Session Stress Need for Educational Spur.

DINNER THIS AFTERNOON

The opening session of a four-day convention of the Association for Study of Negro Life and History was held yesterday at Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, addresses being made by Jane E. Hunter, of Cleveland; Mrs. H. R. Butler, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, of Sedalia, N. C. They expressed the special interest of colored women in dissemination of information about the Negro as an educational task requiring immediate attention. Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, gave the address of wlecome.

Delegates to the convention represent welfare agencies, uplift oganizations and educational institutions through which a Negro history program has been carried on during the past year. The convention aims to work out a more constructive program calculated to unify efforts of these various bodies.

The delegates were entertained, following yesterday's session, by the Association of College Alumnae, at 1901 Eighteenth street northwest.

A get-acquainted dinner will be given at 530 o'clock this afternoon in honor of visitors by the Associated Business Club, with professional men. Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education, will be toastmaster. Addresses will be given by Dr. B. Price Hurst and Mrs. Julia West Hamilton, and responses by Dr. John M. Gandy, president of the Virginia State College, and F. M. Wood, supervisor in Baltimore public schools. A pageant will be presented at 8 o'clock at Armstrong High School.

Four Red Aviators May Avoid Sea Hop

Globe Circlers Doubtful of Trying Long Flight Over Atlantic.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The four Russian fliers circling the globe in their dual-motored plane, Land of the Soviets, indicated tonight they may ship the plane from New York to Moscow, instead of attempting a transatlantic flight.

L. G. Gershevich, of the aviation department of the Antorg Trading Corporation, who has acted as spokesman for the fliers since they left Seattle, said there was considerable doubt as to the feasibility of the transatlantic attempt.

"The plane's two motors seem to be functioning perfectly," Gershevich said, "and we have little doubt but that it could successfully negotiate the long flight. However, there is some doubt in the minds of the Soviet fliers as to the feasibility of risking the attempt. They would regret very much to climax with disaster a venture that has thus far been so successful."

The fliers completed preparations tonight for a take-off early tomorrow for Dearborn, Mich., where they will be entertained by Henry and Edsel Ford.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Briggs Body.

J. F. S.—Kindly give me your opinion of Briggs Body as a long pull stock and if it is worth holding.

Answer—The showing to date has been distinctly disappointing, even though profits increased by 373 per cent in 1928, amounting to $2.15 per share, compared with $8 cents in 1927. Dividends on 2,003,225 no par common shares discontinued in July, 1927, and resumption of disbursements is not in early prospect.

Several Companies Analyzed.

Dr. F. P. F.—I own 50 Maytag at 25; 100 shares Butte Copper & Zinc at 8. What is the financial position of these two companies and what are their future prospects? Am expecting to buy General Baking, Yellow Truck & Coach and International Shoe. Are these stocks well regarded and what is their present status?

Answer—Maytag is considered a speculative investment. The company, which is now making one-third of the washing machines used in this country, has enjoyed the best half year, ended with June 30, in its history. Foreign sales show particular promise. Company is now earning at the rate of over $3 per share on its stock and it is considered to be reasonably priced, both with respect to earnings and dividends.

Butte Copper & Zinc is looked upon as a radical speculation. In spite of better prices for zinc in current year, earnings for six months ended June 30 showed but slight improvement, amounting to 16 cents per share, as against 14 cents in the corresponding period last year. No dividends since 1926 and a resumption not seemingly in prospect.

General Baking Corporation is the second largest of the national baking chains, operating 50 plants in 39 principle population centers. Although profits have been increasing, common stock appears to be priced high on earnings and dividend basis. The issue must be considered a radical speculation not suitable for conservative investment. Fleischmann's Vienna Model Bakery, Inc., was acquired by the General Baking Co. in 1911. Yellow Truck & Coach Mfg. Co., paying no dividend, must be considered a speculation. Despite recent improvement, earnings position still leaves much to be desired and stock must be considered decidedly unattractive for investment holdings. International Shoe Co. is by far the largest shoe manufacturer in the world. Production in six months ended May 31, last, reached a new high of over 25,000,000 pairs of shoes, with a sales value of nearly $60,000,000. Common share earnings in that period were $1.68. Financial position very strong. Annual dividend rate $2.50 a share. Stock has attraction for the long term investor who can ignore intermediate fluctuations.

General Motors, Studebaker.

W. H. V. D.—Am thinking of buying 25 shares each of General Motors and Studebaker common. What do you think of these two stocks to hold for income? Do you think the extra stock dividend now paid by Studebaker will be permanent?

Answer—The belief prevails that General Motors earnings for 1929 will not equal those of 1928. Current indications are that this year's profits will be between $5.50 and $6 per share. Present rate of $3 per share regular per annum, with an extra dividend of 30 cents paid July 2, last. As a conservative long-pull speculation the stock has moderate attraction. On the basis of current regular dividends and present price for the stock the yield to the investor is a little better than 4 per cent.

Studebaker's earnings trend, which was downward through 1925 to 1927, turned upward in 1928, and 1929 returns are expected to be in the neighborhood of $8 per share, including the corporation's share in Pierce-Arrow earnings. In view of the fact that the company is now paying $5 annually in cash dividends, besides the stock dividends or 1 per cent quarterly for 1929, the stock has considerable attraction on a yield basis. However, in this, as in the case of practically all other motor stocks, purchasers should be prepared to assume a fairly high degree of risk. There is no way of knowing as to whether the extra stock dividends now being paid by Studebaker will be permanent. The presumption is they will not be, although there may be others from time to time.

Pure Oil Common.

Mrs. E. H.—I have a small amount of Pure Oil common stock. It is paying so little dividend and is also on the downward trend that I believe it better to dispose of it. Do you think so? I would like some suggestions on some good stock for reinvesting the proceeds. One paying more in dividends than Pure Oil.

Answer—The writer of this column can not venture to say as to whether it might be to your advantage for you to dispose of your Pure Oil common stock at prevailing prices and reinvest the proceeds from the sale therof in some other stock paying a higher rate of dividend.

However, since you have asked for some suggestions relative to other stocks that are paying more in dividends and assuming that you are partial to oil stocks, it may be stated that Standard Oil of California and Standard Oil of Indiana, on which dividends of 2½ per cent annually are paid; Royal Dutch New York, on which $3.22 yearly is paid, are among the issues carrying higher dividend rates than Pure Oil common. However, all these issues are selling more or less substantially higher than Pure Oil common. This fact should be taken into consideration in making the reinvestment which you evidently contemplate.

Commissioner West, who is in charge of police affairs and who has not been in favor of making any change in the present Police Court system, has announced that he would not stand in the way of the adoption of the magistrate system. The Police Court will still be maintained to hear jury trials, but other cases will be heard in the police precincts. In the magistrate system four or five magistrates will divide the precincts into circuits and hold court in the main room of the station house once or twice a day.

The annual fall golf tournament of Columbia Golf Club will begin today at the club's course on Georgia avenue and continue until Saturday.

Central will play Tech at the American League Park tomorrow. This is expected to bring out one of the largest crowds of the high school series. This game, while not the deciding contest of the series, will give the winner the best chance of capturing the series.

WASHINGTON: MONDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1929. 13

COMEBACKS FEATURE IN NATIONAL FOOTBALL RACE

School Race Is Not Yet Decided

Western Hopeful of Beating Eastern Tomorrow.

If Successful, Could Make Open Race by Downing Tech.

TUESDAY.
Eastern vs. Western, Central Stadium, 3:30 p. m.
WEDNESDAY.
Tech vs. Landon.
FRIDAY.
Central vs. Business, Central Stadium, 3:30 p. m.
Emerson vs. William and Mary Freshmen, Williamsburg, Va.
Georgetown Prep vs. St. John's.
SATURDAY.
Emerson vs. Massanutten, at Massanutten.
Devitt vs. Newport News High School, at Newport News.

NOW that the high school series is on in earnest, interscholastic fans have little time for outside games of their favorites but await with interest the coming of Tuesday and Friday. Although to the majority of fans, the race is actually over as far as the championship is concerned, there is little reason to believe that the rest of the series will not be well attended inasmuch as three first-class teams will be fighting for the runner-up position which promises to produce some real scrap and hustle.

And the fact the title has not yet been definitely decided still leads on the fans with that "hope which springs eternal in the human breast" that Tech may yet be knocked off which would throw the race open to at least three schools once more.

Although the Manual Trainers are without an interhigh game this week, one first-class battle should be forthcoming on Tuesday when Eastern exchanges punts with its traditional rival from across the creek, Western. As things now stand, Eastern is resting at the bottom of the heap, although it has played but one game, while the Ahern-coached team is tied on the top rung as the result of a win in its only start.

Tomorrow's Game Important To Both Teams.

Therefore, two serious motives will be opposed Tuesday when the rivals clash, with one seeking to rise against another, striving to remain above level. Should the Western Team mete out a licking to the Lincoln Parkers, it will be tied with Tech for the leadership of the league and would really have something to fight about when it clashes with that school a week hence.

On the other hand, a Western defeat Tuesday would necessitate its winning over Tech in the latter game to stay in the race itself. Any way you look at it, therefore, the prospect of a lively battle in the Tech-Western setto on November 5 is very apparent.

Tech is listed to keep in training for its last stand in the series by taking on the new Landon Team on Wednesday which should give it a fine opportunity to work up new plays and formations.

The Central-Business fray promises to offer very little in the way of an attractive feature, but the fans should receive some thrills by witnessing Larry Pinskney in action again.

Emerson Eleven Plays Twice This Week.

Coach Sanborn's powerful Emerson Eleven is ready to go out of town to continue its winning streak this week, being on the books to meet the William and Mary Freshmen on Friday before traveling to Massanutten the following day. Just how strongly Virginia elevens compare to one of Washington's best prep teams should be demonstrated by these two games.

Another prep school will attempt to better its already impressive winning average when Devitt travels to Newport News on Saturday for a game with the high school of that city. The prep team has already taken the measure of two of the best teams in this vicinity and looks to be in for a good season.

District College Elevens In 3 Home Games Saturday

Maryland-Virginia in Feature—C. U. and Gallaudet Meet Manhattan and Baltimore U., Respectively—G. U. Plays New York U.

MARYLAND and Georgetown play in the most important games involving Capital elevens this Saturday, the former entertaining its time-honored Southern Conference foe, University of Virginia, in a home-coming game at College Park, and the latter invading New York for its second scrap with New York University at Yankee Stadium.

Besides the Maryland-Virginia battle, two other contests are scheduled for local fans' consumption. The fast-improving Catholic University Team will engage Manhattan College, of New York, in the Brookland Stadium, and Gallaudet will play host to Baltimore University at Kendall Green.

Both Maryland and Georgetown are expected to show their best form in the coming clashes. The Old Line outfit kicked the dope for a loop last Saturday by holding the powerful Virginia Military Institute Club to a 7-to-6 score, and with another week of practice should be stronger still. Georgetown has been pointing for New York University and will gain the services of at least one of its regular ends, Ken Provincial, for the game.

New Maryland Back Field Looks Good.

Maryland's new backfield of Evans, Chalmers, Miller and Radice looked the best Coach Byrd has gathered together since last year. Miller's punting against V. M. I. was truly sensational, while the all-around work of the entire quartet was a distinct improvement over the efforts of any other Terrapin backfield this fall.

The outlook, as presented by comparative scores, is favorable to Maryland in the coming game. Virginia was far outclassed by V. M. I. but the latter was actually lucky to nose out Maryland. Virginia's early season 6-to-0 victory over South Carolina, which trounced Maryland two weeks ago, can be discounted in view of the surprising change for the better that

APACHES WIN OVER PROS, 21 TO 12

McCabe, McCann, in Star Roles; Middletown Bows.

GEORGE McCABE, who used to toss passes and call signals for Lou Little over at the Hilltop, joined the Apaches yesterday, and his presence played no small part in the Apaches' 21-to-13 victory over the Middletown (Pa.) professionals at Union Park. McCabe, known as a smart quarter back at Georgetown University, not only knew the Apaches' signals but he called them in addition to throwing passes, catching passes and carrying the ball.

That the Mohawk-Apache game is near was evidenced by the fact that two scouts were on hand from the Mohawk camp. They were Manager Patsy Donovan and Tony Abbotiicchio, star back and captain.

After the Apaches had practically played Middletown off its feet in the first half, the Pennsylvanians came back in the second half to display some real football, scoring two touchdowns while holding the Apaches scoreless.

With "Snail" DeLabre on the bench because of injuries, McCann was assigned to the task of line plunging and turned in a nice exhibition. He scored two of the Apaches' touchdowns, one on an off tackle play and the other on a 15-yard dash around end.

McCabe and Sweeney Make Good Team.

McCabe and Joe Sweeney teamed to give the Apaches their first scores. It was a pass from Sweeney to McCabe which ended an opening drive. For the extra point, the combination reversed with Sweeney catching McCabe's toss.

The real thrill of the game came in the third period. The Apaches worked the ball into Middletown territory and opened a passing attack. Thompson, Middletown guard, intercepted a pass and appeared to have a clear road to a touchdown. However, McCabe dove at him near midfield and slowed him up and Clifford dragged him down. On the next play, Rogers, a substitute back started a run around the left end. He found himself blocked by a wall of Apaches and reversed his field behind perfect interference and stepped down the side lines some 50 yards to the goal

HAWKS ROUT O'REILLY ELEVEN

Richmond Club Bows by 51-12 Margin to Champions.

RICHMOND'S highly-touted O'Reilly Athletic Club proved soft pickings for the District champion Mohawks at the Clark Griffith Stadium yesterday and, had Coach Craig Wilton's men taken their work seriously, they probably could have rung up at least 100 points. As it was, they fooled around, tried out a number of new plays, and then managed to turn in their largest score of the season, winning, 51 to 12.

The O'Reillys, outweighed on an average of at least 20 pounds per man, were badly battered and bruised when they took the field as a result of a hard game Saturday, which put three of their stars in the hospital, but even with their strongest team available, they would have given the Hawks nothing more than a workout.

Two touchdowns were credited to the visitors and both resulted from intercepted forward passes, Falkenstein taking one from Howard in the first quarter and dashing 20 yards for a 6-pointer and duplicating the performance again in the second period. This time, Burke made the heave and Falkenstein raced all the way from midfield.

Falkenstein Ate Well but Not Wisely.

These two long runs, together with some battering he received and a meal consisting of ice cream, oysters and pie just before the game, were more than Falkenstein could stand and he fainted shortly after having been called to the bench for a rest. He entered the game again in the final quarter, however, but was merely there and did nothing worthy of mention.

As may be gleaned from the score, the Hawks did just about as they pleased. "Admiral" Dewey proved to be their hero, this lanky back tearing off runs of various lengths which netted four touchdowns for him personally and aided in some of the others. "Knocky" Thomas, although

Al Marsters Leads East Scorers

Ringle, Gallaudet, Is Second After Setting Record.

Hewitt, of Columbia, Third, and Booth Is Fourth.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Scoring two touchdowns in the Dartmouth rally which routed Harvard by 34 to 7 at Cambridge yesterday, Al Marsters not only increased his lead in individual scoring in this section, but also became the first football player in the United States to enter the 100 class in touchdown traffic. Marsters' two scoring runs against Dartmouth ran his total to 102 points, representing fifteen touchdowns and 12 points thereafter.

Ringle, of Gallaudet, leaped from no points to 59 and second place in a single game as his team ran away with Shenandoah by 80 to 0.

Ringle Sets Record For Season.

Ringle scored nine touchdowns and kicked five points, a season's record for a single afternoon.

Wabbles Hewitt, of Columbia, scored twice against Williams, running his string to 9 touchdowns and a total of 54 points. As little Albie Booth twisted, squirmed and loped to three spectacular scores against the Army and kicked the three extra points to give Yale a 21-to-13 decision, he lifted his own mark to 52 points for the season, good for fourth place.

4 Unbeaten and Untied Elevens Lead in East

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—At the head of the Eastern football list today stand just four undefeated and untied Eastern elevens, survivors at the half-way post of the gridiron derby. Dartmonth, Pittsburgh and a newcomer to the heights this season, little Western Maryland, top the column, each with a perfect record of five victories, and the most able Cornell Eleven since the days of Pfann and Kaw is only a stride behind, with four victories and no defeats.

Not one of the Eastern leaders can show an uncrossed goal line. Dartmouth yielded 7 points to Harvard while crushing the Crimson from the circle of tied but undefeated elevens in a rousing 34-to-7 game at Cambridge yesterday. Fordham gave up 6 points to Davis and Elkins in the final moments of a game at the Polo Grounds, not only spoiling its own record of tossing back its opponents without a score but also causing both the Maroon and Davis and Elkins to fall from the untied, undefeated class through the 6-to-6 draw which resulted.

GRIDMEN NEED SUNGLASSES.

Fans at the Clark Griffith Stadium yesterday, when the Mohawk Eleven swamped the O'Reillys, were reminded of baseball when several punts were lost in the sun.

Latest Army-Navy Game Rumor Denied Both Here and by Annapolis Officials

Rep. Britten Positive No 1929 Game Will Be Played.

REPORTS emanating from Philadelphia last night that Army and Navy will renew football warfare in a game, November 30, at Philadelphia, were denied both here and at Annapolis. Representative Fred A. Britten, Illinois, who has been closely identified with efforts to restore athletic relations between the two service schools, stated he was positive, after having talked with Navy athletic authorities last Friday, that no game would be held this fall even if an agreement is effected in the near future. Naval Academy officials added their denial of the reports in similar terms.

mouth would cancel its game with Navy, scheduled November 30 at Philadelphia, and Notre Dame would cancel with Army for the same date at New York City, and Dartmouth and Notre Dame then would agree to play in New York while Army and Navy clash at Philadelphia.

In addition to the Navy denial, it also was learned at Annapolis that the conference between the superintendents of the service institutions—Maj. Gen. William A. Smith, of West Point, and Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, of Annapolis—to discuss resumption of athletic relations would be held in Washington some time this week.

That the aforementioned plan embodies pleasing features to both Dartmouth and Notre Dame was not disputed. Aside from the satisfaction each would gain in contributing to the renewal of competition between two of the foremost schools in the country—the Big Green and the Irish—would be able, in view of present conditions, to stage their game for East-Middle West championship honors, and furthermore attract a "gate" fully as big, if not bigger, than either of the originally scheduled contests would draw.

Cubs Purchase Bell, Braves' Third-Sacker

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Purchase of Lester Bell, Boston Braves' third baseman, by the Chicago Cubs was consummated today, according to a telephone message from President William Veeck, in Hot Springs, Va. The amount involved was not disclosed, but it was said the deal involved a "considerable sum of money."

The deal was closed in Washington at a conference between Mr. Veeck and President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, according to the message, and is part of the plan announced by Owner William Wrigley, Jr., to strengthen his club's weak spots for the 1930 pennant drive.

Bannockburn Golf Title to Pendergast

The club championships were decided yesterday in the Bannockburn tourney. In Class A, W. L. Pendergast defeated Leo T. Pass, 1 up, at 36 holes in a match which was nip and tuck throughout.

J. O. Rhyne and R. M. Brown won out in Classes B and C, beating G. C. Ballard and Larry W. Moore, respectively, the score being 3 and 2 in each case.

Every Section Offers Title Contender

S. California, Purdue Notre Dame, Pitt Are in Line.

Tennessee, Tulane, Yale, Dartmouth Among Leaders.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—College football's October drive brought to a smashing climax all along the main fronts with a riotous collection of comebacks, today finds the leaders firmly established in most of the principal sectors of combat, ready for the big November attack.

In the survival of the fittest, only about ten major teams stand out in the races for either sectional or national honors as a result of Saturday's stirring succession of skirmishes all the way from Palo Alto to Cambridge.

Taking them from West to East, the pace setters on the basis of the latest returns are Southern California in the Far West, Utah in the Rockies and Texas in the Southwest, Purdue among the Big Ten and Notre Dame among the "delegates at large," Tennessee and Tulane in the Southern Conference, Pittsburgh, Yale and Dartmouth in the East.

Along the Eastern front, the extraordinary personal exploits of Little Albie Booth, Yale's 144-pound sophomore back, and Al Marsters, Dartmouth's fleet ball carrier, lifted these two teams into the very top flight, leaving prostrate the hitherto formidable forms of Army and Harvard.

Booth Presented Show In Yale Bowl.

A crowded Yale bowl seldom, if ever, has seen anything more dramatic or dynamic than Booth's whirl to three touchdowns and a 21-to-13 victory for the Blue after Red Cagle had led the Army into a 13-to-0 lead. Yale has been beaten by Georgia, but Booth, single-handed, has projected the Elis into the top Eastern group, alongside the undefeated clans of Pittsburgh and Dartmouth. The Green's amazingly one-sided conquest of Harvard, 34 to 7, was as individual a triumph for Marsters as was Yale's victory for Booth.

Booth and Marsters, Yale and Dartmouth, meet next Saturday, while Pittsburgh entertains the undefeated but tied Ohio State Eleven. These two contests figure to help clear the atmosphere in the East.

Trojans Favorites Over California.

Southern California, after conquering Stanford by 7-to-0, before 80,000 spectators in the battle of the Pacific Coast, now is a favorite to beat California next Saturday and clinch the Far Western crown in advance of the jaunt east to play Notre Dame at Chicago November 16.

This may develop into one of the greatest games of the year for Notre Dame has swept through four straight games unchecked. The Hoosiers added Carnegie to their list of October victims, 7 to 0, thereby obtaining revenge for previous setbacks at the hands of the Tartans. Rockne's Ramblers now have beaten Indiana, which tied Ohio State Saturday; trimmed the Navy, which tied Princeton; and beaten Wisconsin by a bigger margin than anybody else, besides handing Carnegie its first setback. This week Notre Dame goes South to meet Georgia Tech.

YARN SELECTED TO WIN FEATURE AT LAUREL TODAY

Bostwick Colt Expected to Improve

Chlo Boy One to Beat in Somerset Purse; Aregal Picked.

Barleycorn Choice in Steeplechase; Moscow Named.

By LEONARD W. COLLINS.

WITH the Somerset Purse, a dash over three-quarters of a mile of ground as the feature, the card at Laurel this afternoon is just a little bit better than the average wash-day offering. Surrounding the Somerset are six other events of well-balanced proportions, including a steeplechase.

A rather bulky band has been named for the Somerset, among which are A. C. Bostwick's Yarn, the Loma Stable's Chlo Boy, George W. Foreman's Ned O., and eleven others. Yarn was shipped to Laurel in the very pink of condition, and ran a creditable third the first time out. If improvement can be looked for off that race, the Friar Rock colt shapes up as best in the feature.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 2-year-old maidens.

1	Skirl	110	7	*Phil R.	108
2	St. Tuscan	113	8	Silly Wire	110
3	*Ann C.	105	9	Gun Mah	113
4	*Mary Eloise	105	10	*Zahn	108
5	Naylor	113	11	Bro. Johnson	113
6	*Picador	108	12	Skooty Pooty	113

Also eligible—

13	Fair Dawn	110	16	Kenzie	113
14	Wand'g Gold	113	17	Poor Rube	113
15	Frances St. L.	110	18	Hi Chick	113

ST. TUSCAN showed enough in his three races at the Graw to lead one to believe that the son of St. Henry can take the measure of the band he is asked to meet in this number. However, keen contention can be anticipated from ANN C. The Rockminster miss has been the medium for a heavy play in previous races, but proved a disappointment on each occasion. She should save the place. BROTHER JOHNSON figures best of the others.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles; purse, $2,000; steeplechase, claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1	†Saratof	131	4	Sagamo	132
2	Tramar	131	5	Wayfair	150
3	†Barleycorn	136	6	Orion's Sword	135

†7 pounds claimed for rider.

Jack Campbell finally has rounded up enough hedge-hoppers of sufficient class to at least insure a better than average steeplechasing spectacle. BARLEYCORN is fast reaching that age where before long they will be placing an "a" instead of an "e" in back of his name, but the old fellow still cuts loose with a splendid effort every once in a while. This may be one of those days. WAYFAIR is strictly the one to beat, while SANGAMO, if he stays on his feet, should save the show.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1	Fire Watch	112	7	*Festic	109
2	*Cornbelt	107	8	*Mimic	103
3	Mariner Exton	112	9	Recognition	108
4	*Sonny Golden	107	10	*Supawna	107
5	San de Oro	108	11	*Pat Calhoun	107
6	*Laffar	103	12	*Rock Candy	107

Also eligible—

13	*Virginia T.	100	15	*Cottage Boy	107
14	Grey March	103

Here's one that FESTIC will have a hard time tossing off. The Negofol gelding was brought back to racing after almost a year's lay-off and has shown very good form. With two conditioners under his belt he looks like the most sound hazard of the day. SUPAWNA should find little trouble taking care of the others. FIRE WATCH would appreciate an additional furlong or so, but he figures next best.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1	*Remedy	111	7	*Listerine	113
2	Rea	105	8	*Moscow	116
3	Candy Pig	116	9	Lassa	112
4	Tetra Glass	112	10	Dublin Show	112
5	*Caligan II	110	11	Son of Ann	113
6	Sambo G.	112	12	The Tartar	112

Also eligible—

13	Big Time	112	17	*Prompter	115
14	Sunchen	116	18	*McTinkle	109
15	Reighburn	108	19	*Era	103
16	*Silenus	112	20	Not Guilty	109

MOSCOW found a mile and 70 yards a little too far the last time out and the three-quarters required in this number should prove his dish. The Stefan the Great colt is not blessed with any undue amount of early speed, but runs his best races through the stretch. LASSA will in all probability dominate the running for the first half mile, but should have enough left to be second over HOT TIME. PROMPTER has a chance.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; the Somerset; for 2-year-olds.

1	Skirl	112	7	Stanton	108
2	†Yarn	108	8	Alert	113
3	Jimmy Moran	112	9	Crossbones	103
4	†Chlo Boy	112	10	Fair Orb	112
5	Pious	109	11	Sunburn	112
6	Curtsey	105	12	Zeal	115

Also eligible—

13	Ned O.	115	14	Merry Mack	105

†A. C. Bostwick entry and Loma Stable entry.

YARN ran a smashing third to Hacky H. and Mucker in his only appearance at this point. Taking a line through that effort, there is every reason to believe that the Friar Rock colt will show improvement today. CHLO BOY upset the talent in his previous race, but his score came as no surprise to close students of the game. He is the one to beat. NED O. seems to have it on the others.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1	*Wrench	105	7	Daffodil	113
2	Friede L.	105	8	Fire Chief	116
3	*Alex Woodliffe	111	9	*Brahman	111
4	*Prude II	102	10	Harry Carroll	112
5	*Moscow	Listerine, Hot Time.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

WASH DAY. And despite that the races of this aft will bring to the post many selling platers, commonly known as "Beetles," I believe I have reached down in the old kale sack and dug you up a few choice ones. Of the lot, and I expect at least a dozen, I think NELLIE B, a filly by Assagai, which was no slouch in the heavy going, is the best. She was a nice second last out to the good Theone, the one I handed out to the faithful, and the third spasm at Aurora, which is for maidens, looks to be exactly to her liking. The price ought to be as good as 4 to 1 and you know as well as I do that 4 to 1 is a whole lot better than a push in the face.

For the fifth and feature event, I am handing you the good ISLAM, which ran back of Jack Haskell and Triezee last out. I happen to know that he received a poor ride that day and confidently look for him to tin can this aft.

For the nightcap, CARTOON, which is right at top now, will be hard to beat.

Down at Latonia, the wopsy tiger is none other than FLYING AMBASSADOR, a right smart juvenile which showed consistent form around Chicago tracks this summer. The price may not be so much, but it looks like a spot to set in by the wagon load.

I am handing you GIDEON in the first and KADIAK in the fifth. I might add that I slipped you this one when he ambled home two different times.

AYFARE looks like a genuine good thing in the jumping race down at Laurel today. BARLEY CORN will be the one to beat, but WAYFARE looks to have a seven-point call at least.

The best thing of the day from a wagering standpoint, however, is TORRENCE, one which goes in the finals. Overnight commissions were planted in Kansas City, St. Louis and Cincinnati. Now go sink the ship.

Two Good Mat Bouts At Strand Thursday

Dan Koloff, Washington's adopted champion, will take on another tough opponent on the Strand mat next Thursday night in the feature bout on the card. The "Bulgarian Lion," who has a $5,000 forfeit posted with the Rhode Island State Athletic Commission for a bout with any of the leading championship contenders, will tackle Nazzerareno Poggi, Italian sensation from Jersey City. Poggi is said to be one of the top-notchers and a great battle is promised when he faces Koloff.

In the other bout on the card Joe Turner, local pride, will swap holds with Norman Woods, of Mebane, N. C. Woods, it will be remembered, gained a decision over Turner last March when Champion Gus Sonnenberg showed here, and Turner is out for revenge.

3-Mile 7-Furlong Race On Flat Won by Nopal

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Goldaiatur Stakes, over a 3-mile and 7-furlong route, longest flat race on the French turf, was won today by Nopal, 4-year-old son of Baycherry, out of Flower Shop. Nopal, owned by Baron Edouard de Rothschild, won by two lengths and paid 3 to 1 in the betting.

Pierre Wertheimer's Mirbat was second and Leon Tacquet's Golo, third. Pylade, owned by Lady Granard, the favorite, was unplaced in the field of eight.

SILVER SPRING TEAM TRIUMPHS IN SOCCER SURPRISE

Fashion Shop Is Beaten, 4 to 2

Overconfidence Costs Team Decision Near End of Game.

Marlboro, Rockville Victors in Other Games Played.

BALMY weather took a great deal of the dash from the soccer players yesterday, but nevertheless two of the three contests played were closely contested and afforded the large number of spectators considerable sport. Silver Spring pulled the surprise of the season by defeating Fashion Shop, 4 to 2, while Marlboro downed Gaithersburg by the same count. Rockville showed some of its last year's form to defeat Gaelic-Americans, 5 to 0.

Overconfidence on the part of Fashion Shop gave the fighting Silver Spring outfit the opportunity that it looked for to break in the win column. The losers, bolstered by the addition of Earl Clark, played for three-fourths of the game with the air of a team that could score when it wanted to, but it did not reckon with the well-coached Silver Spring outfit's team play.

Versluis gave a beautiful exhibition of goal kicking, counting three times for the victors with two of his markers being of the sensational type. In the closing minutes of the fray Versluis broke a 2-to-2 deadlock and added an extra marker with clever booting from far out.

Gaithersburg Is Given First Defeat.

Gaithersburg went to Marlboro with a clean slate for the season but returned with a defeat chalked up against it. The Southern Maryland kickers led from twenty minutes after the start of hostilities to the finish, and by downing Gaithersburg gained the distinction of being the only undefeated team in the Capital City League.

Rockville unloosed its heretofore dormant scoring powers to trample on the Gaelic-American Club, 5 to 0. F. Collins and P. Gandy did all of the scoring for the victors, scoring three and two goals respectively.

Tivoli Whirlwinds To Adopt New Name

Tivoli Whirlwinds, a name synonymous with champions, will be relinquished by last year's senior titleholders of the Community Center Basket Ball League in favor of the appellation of Walters' Whirlwinds, for which they will strive to secure the same degree of prestige and prominence that accompanied the former cognomen.

Charles S. Walters, proprietor of Walters' Pharmacy, has assumed the duty of sponsoring the former Tivolians during the approaching season. Feeling that their championship endeavors have been greatly enhanced by the acquisition of their new sponsor, and, too, by having a court at their disposal, the Whirlwinds, preparatory to launching upon a campaign which they hope will lend them another title, are arduously drilling three nights a week in an effort to bring their game to top form. Manager Sanders is doing the scheduling at North 9356.

And now may we show you the selected style in the "slender-last" group his foot went outside on the 11-yard line, however.

Allen was again the outstanding player for the locals, while Hayman, former University of Virginia star, played a strong game on the defense.

With the aid of a 5-yard penalty and four line smashes, three of which Carroll and Mosko turned back, Middletown worked to a first down with a yard to go. Two more smashes and Reich went over for the first touchdown on the season scored on the Apaches.

Aerials Help Middletown To Touchdown.

A passing combination of Reich and Hendricks gave Middletown its other touchdown. Two heaves, one 35 yards and the other 10 yards, gave the visitors a first down on the Apaches' 6-yard line. Rogers carried the ball over on a neat reverse play. Watson failed to kick both tries for points.

Maryland Eleven Host To Virginia on Saturday

New Old Line Back Field Combination Functioned Against V. M. I. in Richmond. "Bad Breaks" Cost Maryland Victory.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S FOOTBALL TEAM, although nosed out, 7 to 6, by the strong and fast-traveling V. M. I. Eleven in Richmond the past week-end, is much encouraged for its battle with Virginia at College Park on Saturday. It will be the Old Liners' home-coming day affair.

Maryland played fine, all-around football against the Cadets, and, but for a bad "break" in a heartbreaking decision, probably would have walked off the field a winner. The Old Liners had halted a V. M. I. drive inside their 35-yard line late in the third quarter by breaking up a forward pass on the fourth down, but just as Maryland's adherents were cheering the feat, the head linesman stepped out and ruled interference on the play. This allowed the Cadets to keep the ball, and they went on to a touchdown, which, with the ensuing extra point, decided the issue.

Penalty Makes Winning Field Goal Fall Short.

Had it not been for the penalty, with the way in which Buck Miller, of the Old Liners, was booting the ball, it is unlikely that the Cadets would have scored.

Maryland also got another tough "break" just as the game was about to end in a 5-yard penalty for taking time out once more than allowed. Chalmers, on the next line-up, tried a drop-kick, which fell only 4 or 5 feet short of crossing the bar. It had fine direction and had it not been for the 5-yard penalty, would have had sufficient distance to have given Maryland 3 points and the game.

However, Coach Curley Byrd was pleased with the way in which his team performed, the line showing up strongly and the back field functioning in good order as a unit for the first time this season. Evans, Miller, Chalmers and Radice proved a versatile quartet and, if they can be kept together for the remainder of the season, will worry any rival defense.

Booting of Miller is One of Game's Features.

Miller's kicking was the sensation of the game, the Old Line sophomore oesting McCray, who is rated as one of the greatest punters in the South. Miller had the edge in kicking with the wind and excelled the V. M. I. booter by a wide margin against the breeze.

While several of the Maryland players were bruised and will have to be rested up for a day or two, Jack Norris, tall end, is the only one who performed against V. M. I. who is not likely to be available for use against Virginia. He suffered an injured ankle that may keep him out some time, although the extent of the hurt will not be known until an X-ray picture is taken.

Heintz, veteran guard, who broke a bone in his hand in the game with North Carolina on October 5, is to rejoin the squad today, but it is hardly likely he will be available for use against Virginia. He should be ready by the time Yale is met in New Haven on November 9.

LASALLE 19-0 VICTOR OVER ST. JOHN'S

District Boys Put Up Plucky Fight at Cumberland.

Special to The Washington Post.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 27.—Coach Johnny Long's LaSalle Institute Eleven, of Cumberland, ran rough shod over St. John's, of Washington, here this afternoon before 2,500 grid devotees, who saw the Blue and Gold romp off with a 19-to-0 victory.

LaSalle's heavy line, which outweighed the District forward wall, repulsed the only two real threats the visitors made at the Institute goal. Washington was quelled in the second period with the ball on LaSalle's 20-yard line and again in the third quarter when only 10 yards away from the LaSalle goal line, which has not been crossed this season.

La Salle Opens With 2 Touchdowns.

LaSalle scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, DeHart circling right end for 25 yards and Blough intercepting a pass to cruise 80 yards from his own 20-yard line. Washington outplayed LaSalle in the second quarter but failed to score. The half ended, 13-0.

The final touchdown came in the third period on a beautiful dash by Conley, who raced 60 yards through the entire visiting team. St. John's completed many passes but could not function at opportune times. Line-up:

handicapped by a leg injury and running outside on several occasions to save it from further damage, also made his presence felt, as did Abbotiechio and Burke.

All told, the Hawks registered 26 first downs to only 7 for the O'Reillys—and two of the latter's were penalty ones. The Richmonders made but one stand, a short one late in the third period, when two forward passes, Kovacs to Beckstoffer, put the ball on the Hawks' 10-yard line. This chance was blown when Leftwich was chased back 20 yards while trying to find some one to whom he could toss another aerial.

Hawks Ineffective at Aerial Game.

Coach Wilton had his men practicing on their overhead game and, no doubt, was quite disappointed at the result. Of the twenty attempts made, only four were successful, while each of the two intercepted accounted for an alien touchdown. The O'Reillys went to the air sixteen times, completed six and saw six others snared by Mohawk players.

St. Stephen's Gains Lead In Senior Football Race

THE St. Stephen's Eleven gained the lead in the senior division of the Capital City League yesterday by virtue of a 6-0 victory over the Friendship A. C. Eleven. The Saints now have two victories and no defeats in league play. In the same class, Mercury came through with an easy victory over the Marions, 31 to 0.

Tuck Dalgiish, who is starring for the Saints this season along with Percy Zumbo, accounted for the only scores of the game with a 60-yard run for a touchdown. Dalgiish sidestepped a number of tacklers and outran others on his dash.

Fumbles spoiled other scoring chances for the Saints. The Foggy Bottom line held Friendship to one first down, while the Saints were rolling up 26. An injured foot kept Zumbo out of the Saints' line-up.

Healy, end, scored two of Mercury's touchdowns against the Marions. He shared the spotlight with Spalding and Whiltshire. The latter made four long runs during the battle. Beall did the best work for the Marions.

MT. RAINIER BEATEN BY AZTECS

31-0 Victory Scored in 125-Pound Class Grid Battle.

THE Aztecs swamped the Mt. Rainier Eleven, 31 to 0, in the 125-pound class of the Capital City League yesterday. The game drew a large crowd to the Burrows Field gridiron. The Aztecs displayed a fast, well-drilled eleven which gained steadily through the line and around the ends.

The Aztecs scored in each period and after gaining a 13-to-0 lead, Capt. Joray withdrew his regulars and sent them back into the game only when the Mt. Rainier team threatened to score near the close of the game. The Aztecs' defense held Mt. Rainier to two first downs, one on an off-tackle play, and the other on a short pass.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

PUBLIC WILL VIEW TORPEDO STATION

Marines and Employes at Alexandria Will Guide Navy Day Visitors.

WORK ON ROAD TO START

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

In the observance of Navy Day here today, the U. S. Naval Torpedo Station will be open to the public between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., when Marines and station employes will act as guides in exhibiting the articles.

Among the objects of interest will be one of the Navy's oldest torpedoes, manufactured in 1896, which had a range of only 700 yards and speed of 18 knots; a modern torpedo, cut open to show the working of its mechanism; illustrations of the process of manufacture, and a German torpedo used during the World War, with a section cut away to give an idea of its construction. There will also be on exhibition a type of mine used by the Navy in the North Sea mine barrage during the World War; a modern type of small range finder; a deep-sea diving apparatus and diving gear, and several of the smaller types of great guns.

During the period when the Alexandria Naval Torpedo Station was in operation, every operation in the manufacture of torpedoes was carried on here, and the plant had a payroll of approximately 1,500 men. This force was gradualy reduced, and the plant was finally shut down and the operations transferred to Newport, R. I. While the local plant was in operation, torpedoes, upon their completion, were taken to the testing ground at Piney Point and each one given a thorough test, under actual service conditions. Only a small force of caretakers is now employed at the plant, with a guard of Marines.

The matter of reopening the plant, or of leasing it to some industry which would bring additional population to Alexandria, has been taken up with the Navy Department several times by the Virginia delegation in Congress, but no action has ever been taken.

The work of improving the River road between Alexandria and Washington will be started probably not later than December 1, according to the latest information available from the State Highway Commission, which will have charge of the work. An allocation of $80,000 was made by the highway commission several months ago, the money to be available after July 1, and it was thought the work would have been completed before now. Bids, it is understood, will be opened in Richmond November 17, but the district engineer in charge of the work will be at the Union Passenger Station here to go over the work with any contractor who wises to bid on the construction.

This road is one of the most important links in the Washington-Richmond highway, and carries heavier traffic than any road in this vicinity. The original understanding was that the improvement would run from the District line at the south end of Highway Bridge to the present Alexandria city limits, a distance of four miles. However, since the city of Alexandria has won its suit for annexation of a portion of Arlington County, it is now understood that the improvement will only come as far south as Four Mile Run, which will be the new northern city limit, or approximately two miles, leaving a two-mile stretch to be improved by Alexandria as a city street. This decision is understood to be based upon the fact that the present law does not permit State road funds to be expended within the limits of incorporated cities or towns.

The new section of road will be 30 feet wide, or an increase of 8 feet in the present width. This will, of course, relieve the situation on this 2-mile stretch, but traffic southbound will encounter a "bottleneck" at Four Mile Run which may prove awkward and lead to congestion.

Mrs. Margaret Ann Berryman, aged 72 years, widow of W. L. Berryman, of 120 North Patrick street, while walking home from church services yesterday morning, was stricken at the corner of King and Alfred streets, and was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where she died within ten minutes without regaining consciousness. She is survived by two sons, L. J. and William E. Smith, of Cincinnati, Ohio; two sisters, Mrs. John G. Henshaw, of this city, and Mrs. John Frank, of Anderson, S. C.; and five brothers, Robert, Frank and H. C. Smith, of this city; Leroy Smith, of Anderson, S. C., and William Smith, of Clarendon, Va.

Joseph M. Peake, aged 75 years, of Braddock Heights, died suddenly Saturday while visiting his brother, W. M. Peake, at 102 North Fayette street. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the home at Braddock Heights, with burial at The Plains, Va. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jane Frances Peake, and the following children: Prof. James F. Peake, of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va.; Mrs. J. L. Arnold, of Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. W. J. Middleton, of Trenton, N. J.; Neville H. Peake and Miss Rose Peake, of this city, and a granddaughter who made her home with her grandparents, Miss Evelyn F. Peake.

Raymond W. Smith, aged 58 years, a former member of the Alexandria police force, was taken to a Washington hospital at an early hour yesterday morning and died in the afternoon. He lived at 312 North Royal street, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ida Smith, a son and a daughter, Charles Smith and Miss Eva Smith, and a sister, Mrs. Howard M. Colvin, of this city.

A meeting of the civic bureau of the chamber of commerce will be held tomorrow evening to discuss traffic conditions in the city, with particular reference to the congestion in King street. Representatives of other bureaus have been invited to be present.

Georgia Avenue Group Will Elect Officers

The Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association will elect officers at the annual dinner-meeting tomorrow night at the Joppa Lodge Building, Ninth and Upshur streets northwest. William Harland, traffic director, is expected to be a guest of honor. Members of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association also have been invited.

Those in charge of preparations for the dinner are: A. Denekas, general chairman; E. W. Sanders, chairman of entertainment; J. Schaefer, program chairman; M. R. Vollmer, in charge of invitations; E. Minoux, reception and publicity, and A. Haight, refreshments. H. Mason Welch will be toastmaster.

Three Capital Men Hurt in Virginia

Auto Is Wrecked as Driver Tries to Pass Bus on Snake Hill.

William Timbrook, 27 years old, of 613 Sixth street northwest; William Everts Corbin, 25 years old, of 2 Clark place, Conduit road, and William H. Kessler, of 600 Foxhall Heights, are in the Alexandria Hospital suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident yesterday morning on Snake Hill, about 3 miles south of Alexandria. All are painfully cut and bruised and Timbrook, who was the driver of the car, may have sustained internal injuries, according to the hospital authorities.

None of the young men apparently is able to say just how the accident occurred. They stated, however, that they were on the left side of the road, turning a curve, and a bus was approaching. When they attempted to turn to the right their car struck an obstruction, swerved across the road and crashed into a telephone pole, almost completely demolishing the car, throwing them all out and injuring all three. They were taken to the hospital by a passing motorist.

With the possible exception of Timbrock, none is believed to be seriously injured.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE HEAD EXPIRES HERE

Brother Martin Had Been in Catholic Schools for 40 Years.

NATIVE OF PHILADELPHIA

The Rev. Brother Martin, president of St. John's College, died at Georgetown Hospital last night after an illness of seven weeks and an operation from which he failed to rally. He had been at the head of the college for two years and had been connected with Catholic schools for about 40 years.

A native of Philadelphia, Brother Martin was educated at St. Peter's School in Philadelphia, and the Normal School at Ammendale, Md.

During his school career, he was connected with the Rock Hill College at Ellicott City, Md.; Calvert Hall College at Baltimore, the Visitation School at Philadelphia, the St. Thomas School, at Scranton, Pa., and the La Salle Institute, at Cumberland, Md.

Prior to his elevation to the presidency at St. John's College, he was teacher and head of the cadet corps at the college for several years.

Of his immediate family, he is survived by a sister and brother, Mrs. Benjamin Vincent, and Philip Huck, both of Takoma Park, Md.

Solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated on Wednesday morning at St. Matthew's Church and the interment will be in the Christian Brothers' burial plat at Ammendale, Md.

Auto Crash Ends Round-World Trip

Youth Tells About Injuries Halting Hitch-Hikes That Began in Capital.

An attempt to make a trip around the world on a thin dime, with Washington the starting and stopping point, came to an abrupt end last week in Wakeeney, Kans., when E. Robert Jones, who was making the tour, was injured in an automobile accident. The information was revealed in a letter written by Jones to the city editor of The Post.

The youth, a student of journalism at Indiana University, who embarked from the Capital on October 18, had traveled 1,200 miles, but had walked only nine, when hurt. He had made a wager that he would circle the globe in four months and four days.

Hurled 10 feet into the air and through the top of the car as it overturned, Jones sustained a dislocated shoulder and numerous cuts and bruises.

Chaplains Plan Rites At Tomb of Soldier

Chaplains of the Army and the Navy on active duty here will hold a brief ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery on the morning of Armistice Day, November 11, it was announced yesterday at the War Department.

After the exercises at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the chaplains will visit the Chaplain's Cenotaph and place a wreath upon it in memory of the chaplains who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War.

Infant Badly Burned As She Upsets Grease

Frances Estelle Thornton, colored, 22-month-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Thornton, of Lynnwood, Md., near Bladensburg, suffered severe burns about the face, neck and hands when she tipped over a pan of hot grease on the kitchen stove in the house at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The mother brought the child to the fire house at Bladensburg, where she was given first aid by Chief H. L. Leonard of the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad and removed in its ambulance to Freedmen's Hospital, where she was reported in a serious condition with second-degree burns.

NEW STREET LAMPS URGED IN CLARENDON

Merchants Are Considering Plans for Illumination in Arlington.

FLAG GIVEN TO SCHOOL

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Establishment of good street lights along the Wilson boulevard through the business section of Clarendon to conform with the modern roadway, 44 feet in width, which has just been thrown open to traffic, is being considered by business interests, including the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

The matter has been taken up with officials of the Virginia Public Service Corporation, which serves Arlington with its street lights and cooperation has been assured.

The plan calls for standard iron poles with suspended lamps, with a view to a uniform future lighting system.

Supervisor B. M. Hedrick is in favor of the project and has said he will cooperate with business interests to establish the system. He stated that the county will pay for the current used, but feels that the expense of the poles and lamps should be borne by the business men. Other expenses will be arranged by the Public Service Corporation, it is expected.

Cherrydale Council, No. 11, Daughters of America, presented an American flag to the Saegmuller School yesterday afternoon. About 200 persons attended. Mrs. Mary E. Hutson made the presentation. The flag was accepted on behalf of the county school board and the teachers of the school by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

Mrs. Bessie Kenyon, State secretary of the Daughters of America, outlined the principles of the order and stated that one of the greatest pleasures of its members is presenting American flags to the public schools.

The Arlington Chapter, No. 39, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a card party tonight at the home of Mrs. John Dudley, Chain Bridge road, Cherrydale.

Col. Anderson, a leading Republican, and Louis A. MacMahon, Republican nominee for the House of Delegates from Arlington, will be the principal speakers at the Republican mass meeting to be held tonight in the auditorium of the Cherrydale firemen's hall at 8 o'clock.

The Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, of Falls Church, will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Henry.

Hugh Reid, Democratic nominee for reelection to the House of Delegates, and Harry K. Green, county commissioner of revenue, are announced as the speakers for a Democratic mass meeting to be held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the old Columbia Pike Schoolhouse.

Speaking in the Fourth Congressional District of Virginia, Saturday night, J. Cloyd Byars declared that all over the State the tide is running strong for Dr. Moseley Brown, coalition candidate for governor.

"This political revolution in Virginia is the result of a long series of governmental abuses, Gov. Byrd's publicity bureau to the contrary notwithstanding," Byars said.

Plans for the annual Red Cross roll call in Arlington were formed at an executive committee meeting Saturday night at the home of George A. Collier, county chairman, it was announced yesterday. A goal of 1,000 members has been set for this year's drive, to start November 11, and an even greater enrollment is expected.

The county will be divided into districts with vice chairman and a corps of selected workers designated to canvass the territory. Special committees will assist in enrolling members among civic and business organizations, schools and churches.

The drive to raise $5,000 to burn the mortgage on the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall is nearing the $2,000 mark, reports last night showed.

The special committee in charge of the campaign, of which Fred A. Gosnell is chairman, will meet tomorrow night in the directors' room in the Firemen's Hall. At this meeting the several captains will make their official reports covering activities over the past week.

Funeral services for Fairfax German, 34 years old, of Ballston, who died Saturday morning, will be conducted from the home of his sister, Mrs. S. L. Baker, School street, Ballston, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock by the Rev. T. O. Jones, pastor of the Ballston Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church, and the Rev. C. P. Ryland, former pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Arlington National Cemetery.

The services will be conducted at the home of the sister, in accordance with her request, she being unable to leave her room. Besides the widow, he is survived by one son, Paul.

The Clarendon Rebekah Lodge officers have announced a benefit luncheon to be given Wednesday in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon from 12 to 2 o'clock.

According to records in the office of Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green, there were issued during the past week three certificates for new buildings, to cost $31,750.

J. E. Spaulding, chairman of the county Republican committee, yesterday issued a statement in which he urges all those who wish to make use of the absent voters' privilege to do so before Thursday of this week, the final day on which such ballots are obtainable.

Provision of this law allow any voter who expects to be absent from his or her voting precinct during the hours of the election on Tuesday, November 5, to secure a ballot from the registrar of the precinct. Applications for such ballot may be made by mail or in person. The ballot, when secured, is marked and mailed in a sealed envelope to the registrar and deposited in the ballot box election day.

HUNDREDS SEEKING MISSING NAVY MAN

Recruiting Officers Today Will Join in Search for Lieut. Northcutt.

LAST SEEN IN RICHMOND

All Navy recruiting officers East of the Mississippi River today will join the search for Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt, of the Construction Corps of the Navy, who disappeared from his station at Norfolk last Tuesday night. The sudden dropping out of the young naval officer is worrying Government officials here, and an army of 700 men will be on the lookout for any trace of him.

Rear Admiral Richard H. Leigh, U. S. N., who is directing the search for his department, said last night he had never known of a more thorough hunt for a missing man but it has yielded very little. No trace since the finding of his automobile at Richmond, 100 miles from Norfolk, where he was last seen, has been found.

Large parties of searchers went out yesterday from Norfolk, Portsmouth and Richmond. Thirty-odd Department of Justice men are among those working on the case. Fifty cars of Ku Klux Klansmen from the Virginia branch of the order voluntarily joined the army of searchers. Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, has instructed his agents throughout the State to assist.

"THE TRESPASSER." United Artists all-talking picture, starring Gloria Swanson, under the direction of Edmund Goulding, author of the story and dialogue. Reviewed (second week) by Mary Porter Russell.

By this time the news has been spread thoroughly about town that Gloria Swanson's entrance into the talking field is a brilliantly successful one. She holds her own in speech with the best of the Broadway stars and reveals a depth of feeling and a capacity for emotion that remained half hidden in her silent films. She sings, too, in a soprano voice of real promise, the greatest fault of which is the possibility of its leading her into the singing and dancing type of extravaganza. The new Gloria is too fine to be wasted in a musical comedy role. She has understanding and intelligence and the ability to interpret true characters, dealing with the fundamentals of life in an unsuperficial way.

Such an opportunity is given her in her present vehicle, and to it she owes a large share of her acclaim. Marion Donnell is a fascinating character. On the winding and often rocky path that leads her from the life of a stenographer to that of the wife of a millionaire; back again to stenography, with a child to support; down, with the failure of health, to unhonorable luxury, and up at last to the heights of self-forgetfulness, she embodies strength and weakness and pride and compassion, and, when put to the test, an infinite love.

There are other characters etched impressively in the unfailingly gripping tale—the vacillating young husband by Robert Ames; the dominating father, who banishes Marion in favor of a socially prominent wife for his boy, by William Holden; the pathetic little cripple an automobile accident makes of his choice, by Kay Hammond.

Marion's scenes with the wives of the two men whose love she holds are the most memorable of the film. Both are presented in a compellingly sympathetic light, yet not for a moment do they attain first place in the spectator's heart.

Blanche Frederici, Wally Albright, Henry B. Walthall, Marcella Corday and Purnell Pratt are excellent in supporting roles.

The only auxiliaries are a newsreel and a talking comedy, "Angora Love," starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

METROPOLITAN

"THE FOUR FEATHERS." Paramount adaptation of a story by A. E. W. Mason, with synchronized accompaniment, featuring Richard Arlen, William Powell, Clive Brook and Fay Wray. Studio direction by Lothar Mendes; African direction and photography by Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack. Reviewed Sunday afternoon (second week), by W. A. Whitney.

A beleaguered fortress in the midst of a burning desert forms the background against which the climacteric action of this tense photodrama revolves and through the defense of which "The Four Feathers" of cowardice are redeemed.

A picture, staged upon the vastness of "Beau Geste" and in much the same motif, supplemented by jungle scenes reminiscent of "Chang," and a cast composed of those whose acting ability is perfection itself—a picture thus made up needs no lengthy commentary on its merits.

The cast alone—composed of Richard Arlen, William Powell, Clive Brook, Noah Beery, Fay Wray, George Fawcett, Theodore von Eltz, Phillipe de Lacey and others—is sufficient to make the picture noteworthy. And such noteworthiness would be deserved, for each member of the cast performs his appointed part with all possible feeling and ability.

The first few reels and the closing one have England for the locale. The vast middle portion of the picture is laid in the Sudan where the makers of "Grass" and "Chang" have portrayed the activities of the English campaign in 1882 with force and convincing realism.

It is refreshing to some of us once again to see a silent picture. The picture, however, carries a synchronized accompaniment and such added sound effects as might readily fall within the possibilities of rendition by an orchestra.

Supporting the feature are "Ladies' Choice," a comedy featuring Charlie Grapewin and Anna Chance, a silent and sound newsreel, and the "Indian Love Call," as a recessional.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

PALACE

"THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES." Paramount all-talking picture by Basil Dean and Carrett Fort, based on a story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, with Clive Brook featured. Directed by Basil Dean. Reviewed Saturday night.

By NELSON B. BELL.

In engrossing involvement of plot, cumulative suspense, skillful building of climax and swiftness of denouement, this subject completely fulfills my idea of what a detective story should be like on the screen. Certainly to these virtues must be added those of keen intelligence, in both the preparation of the script and the acting, and a quality of recording which in my experience as an habitual gazer at the silver sheet has never been excelled in clarity and easy understandability.

Perhaps it might all be expressed in the single statement that here is a picture that reflects every element of appeal that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle so admirably succeeded in writing into the most fascinating tales of crime detection ever penned, plus the matter of audibility. It is interesting and taut entertainment, devoid of the cheap claptrap of the ordinary mystery play. It presupposes the possession of adult intelligence on the part of the audience.

The plot is thoroughly up to the minute and brings Sherlock Holmes into a spirited conflict of wits with his old rival Moriarity, and that master crook's principal henchman, Col. Moran, whose genius for crime has led them into an especially lucrative line of radio and wireless telephone tapping along the air lanes between New York and London. It is aboard an ocean liner that Holmes brings about the downfall of the gang, solves a murder and rescues the kidnaped young man who is to marry the daughter of his old friend, Dr. Watson, who, of course, all are aboard.

Clive Brook reveals new facets of a highly polished gift of characterization in the role of Sherlock Holmes. He lends something of the sense of intellectuality to his portrayal, twice offering bits of striking contrast in the disguise of a German ship's musician and as a room steward of dull mentality and stupid clumsiness. This is the most versatile Clive Brook the cameras have encountered. It is therefore well that the supporting cast is one of such excellence.

Harry T. Morey, formerly a Vitagraph star in his own right, as Moriarity; Donald Crisp, as Moran, masquerading as the ship's doctor; H. Reeves-Smith, the Dr. Watson, and Betty Lawford, the Dorothy Snell of "Gentlemen of the Press," his daughter, are foremost among a large number of players who contribute to the high level of artistry that distinguishes an effort that would do credit to William Gillette.

"Believe It or Not," Jack Partington's stage revue, affords a brisk half hour that is cleverly dominated by Al Evans, who this time is less the master of ceremonies than ace entertainer. Introducing his own new composition, "Stolen Moments," with a trio from the stage band and the full orchestral ensemble assisting, Al wows them at the piano and then shares in Earl La Vere's high pressure interval of song and story as feeder. Mary and Bobby, dancers; Olive May, soprano; Walter Powell, trick trombonist; the Great Leon, magician, and a lively ensemble complete the roster.

The Metrotone News, orchestral prelude and organ interludes are the auxiliaries.

RIALTO

"THE WAGON MASTER." A Universal adaptation of a story by Marion Jackson, with talking sequences, featuring Ken Maynard, supported by Edith Roberts and Al Ferguson. Directed by Harry J. Brown. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

Ken Maynard, one of the two remaining exponents of the old he-man West, makes his debut in the "big time" cinema in a story of wagon-trekking between isolated mining camps and trading posts of the covered wagon days.

The story concerns the rivalry of two wagoneers—the one, headed by Jake Lynch, decidedly dishonest; the other, run by Bill Hollister, quite the other extreme. But virtue finally triumphs, and the Rambler gets his train through to Three Forks, bringing with him Jacques Frazelle, who tried to carry out the machinations of Lynch.

The pivotal characters are played by Ken Maynard, as the Rambler, whose sartorial excellence is not quite in keeping with the picturesque unkemptness of most of the cast; Tom Santschi, as Jake Lynch, and Al Ferguson, as Jacques Frazelle. Supporting these are Edith Roberts, as Sue, who furnishes what little love interest there is; Frederick Dana, as Bill Hollister; Jack Hanlon, as Billie Hollister, Bill's son, whose premonitions of Jake's crookedness are not wholly unfounded, and White Horse, Frank Rice and Bobby Dunn, as pals of the Rambler.

Of course, Tarzan, Maynard's inseparable equine partner, has his role. The characters are well chosen and all give impersonations in which no glaring fault is to be found.

During the reeling, Mr. Maynard sings a couple of songs and the entire cast speak at times, thus interrupting an otherwise unusually well selected musical score but not seriously interfering with the speed of the action or the enjoyment of the picture.

"Night Owls," featuring Arthur Lake and directed by Sam Newfield, is principally interesting as a silent comedy and proves that a hilarious and fast-moving farce can still be made without sound.

George Sidney, reading a modernized and lengthened version of "Cohen on the Telephone," is the principal sound subsidiary. The voice of Nick Lucas singing "I've Got a Feeling I'm Falling for You" to the accompaniment of semianimated pictures and a release of the Universal News complete the bill.

The Rialto Orchestra provides the music for the silent portions of the program. The omitted overture is missed.

FOX

"FLIGHT." Columbia all-talking production, featuring Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Lila Lee. Original story by Ralph Graves, adapted by Howard J. Green and directed by Frank R. Capra. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

Although the seasoned picturegoer will have seen the plot of the first half of this serial thriller in "Prep and Pep" and "The Air Circus" and the last half in "The Flying Fleet" and "The Cock-Eyed World," climacteric episodes have been so rearranged and embellished with such a rich investiture of amusing incident and illuminating detail that the air epic of the Marine Corps possibly will move a step ahead of any of its service predecessors in point of appeal. There are more than a few sequences in this picture when the spectator may expect to find himself out on the edge of his chair biting his finger nails and drenching himself in cold perspiration.

The story is based on rivalry in love, seeming cowardice on the part of a chap who evidently was born with two strikes on him and a particularly vicious campaign in the Nicaraguan jungles. Although Marine Corps flying bases and their complete equipment are made the background for the stirring action, only five characters are required to lend vigor to the dramatic conflicts and physical clashes that mark the progress of perhaps the most naturally and convincingly executed of all the pictures of its type that have been made.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves are the pivotal figures in the play—the former as the hard-boiled sergeant who happens to love the same girl as only the one of his pupils who cracked up a plane. Graves appears in the role of that hapless young man and Lila Lee is the girl. There comes to mind no flaw in the work of any one of the three. As a matter of fact, since the advent of the talkies I have had a particularly hard time trying to find anything to criticize in any role Miss Lee has assumed, and both Holt and Graves increase in stature, in my estimation, with each new assignment. The only other two who matter in the present film are Allan Roscoe, cast as the Marine major, and Harold Goodwin, as a flier who is brought down in the tropical swamps and dies a pitiful death that is a little too realistic for comfort.

The direction is splendid, the aerial photography to be rated with the best that has been seen, and the recording, both on the ground and in the air, of an exceptionally high order.

"Through the Gate," the stage revue, is another of Fanchon and Marco's colorful creations in which clever principals and an agile mixed chorus, introduced by John Irving Fisher, participate. Among these, Benny and Western, tap dancers who add a touch of novelty to their work; Marvel, a spinning Russian dancer; an unidentified soprano and barytone and the mixed ensemble are to be especially commended. Lewis and Ames, a man and woman who engaged in a sidewalk crossfire, from the nature of their material and the manner of its presentation, seemed to me in some strange manner to have wandered away from the smoker circuits, although the crowd apparently enjoyed their coarse buffoonery.

The Movietone News, Mr. Chamberlain's inevitable stock ballyhoo and two movements of Wagner's "Tannhauser" overture, conducted by Mr. Brusiloff, complete a program of unusual length.

EARLE

"THE SATURDAY NIGHT KID." A Paramount all-talking picture, starring Clara Bow, supported by Jean Arthur and James Hall. Directed by A. Edward Sutherland. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

It is big picture month and Clara Bow week at the Earle Theater and Saturday night's audience, on hand to witness the Saturday night kid emit sparks, fairly seethed with approval and delight. The hold Clara has upon her public is almost an uncanny thing. Her beauty is becoming slightly coarsened, and her acting in the present offering is untinged with greatness. Yet to see her the crowds have flocked, are flocking and will continue to flock. And they will leave, for the most part, satisfied.

Department store love has always proved a popular theme for a picture and so, too, has the maltreatment of a noble older sister by a selfish younger one. These are combined in "The Saturday Night Kid" into a story dealt with not very long since in a silent film. It is a wisely selected talking vehicle for Miss Bow, the slangy role of the older sister, Mayme, offering no difficulties in the way of diction, and the sprightly if unoriginal developments of the plot providing unceasing opportunities for her well-known pep.

There is an episode in which she plays a crap game in close-up exactly as you would imagine she would play a crap game in close-up, and another in which she lighs into sister Janie fistically to actual applause.

Jean Arthur is surprisingly good as the hypocritical whining, scheming Janie. There are moments when she steals the picture quite as successfully as she steals Mayme's floor-walker beau and the welfare funds which have been entrusted to her as treasurer and which she accuses Mayme of having gambled away. James Hall does well enough with the floor-walking role, while Edna May Oliver provides a large share of the amusement with her interpretation of Miss Streeter, the director of personnel.

The short subjects for the week are more diverting than usual. Eddie Miller creates something of a sensation with his "One Man Quartet," a number in which trick photography and recording and expert synchronization enable him to sing four parts as four men. An Al Christie talking-comedy, "He Did His Best," features Taylor Holmes, Carmel Myers and Kathryn Maguire in a frothy bit of nonsense; a four-piece orchestra and a soprano soloist figure in a brief offering entitled, "The Opry House," and a silent news reel is shown to orchestral accompaniment.

All of these are overshadowed in importance by the "Sweetheart Overture," a medley of six popular "sweetheart" melodies arranged and conducted by Daniel Breeskin, who contributes a violin solo during the course of its rendition.

RKO—KEITH

"STREET GIRL." RKO all-talking and musical production, adapted from W. Carey Wonderly's "The Viennese Charmer," with Betty Compson starred, supported by Jack Oakie and Johnny Harron. Directed by Wesley Ruggles. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

While it was the old, familiar Keith Theater that was again thrown open to the public Saturday afternoon, it was a a new Betty Compson that appeared in the stellar role of the inaugural picture. Miss Compson, here for the first time within my knowledge, assumes a dialect part, that of a cabaret artiste from the little Principality of Aregon, wherever that may be, through whose instrumentality—both literally and figuratively—a quartet of American musicians are elevated to the "big money."

It is a part of the function of the play to demonstrate that Fredericka Joyzelle's adulation of her native Prince Nickalarus is a less poignant emotion than her love for Mike, the pianist of the four she salvages from the honky-tonks. During the course of the demonstration there is a wealth of clever wise-cracking, much tuneful music and a rapid succession of interesting developments to be enjoyed.

While there are only three musical numbers utilized in the building of the story—which, by the way, never surrenders itself to tunes without adequate dramatic justification—they are particularly well chosen. "Loveable and Sweet," "My Dream Memory" and "Broken Up Tune," the last named sung in a gorgeous night club setting by Doris Eaton, are apt to stick in memory as long as any you have heard from the screen.
